OFFICIAL NEWS

The Japanese were acknowledged officially today to have made "some headway at some points" on Java, bringing to bear their numerical superiority—especially in planes—against an heroic defense which had held them in check since Sunday.

The enemy inroads indicated no radical change as yet in the situation in which the Dutch and their allies had shown sufficient power yesterday to press the invaders back in one sector.

(About 30,000 Allied troops, among them "a few thousand American and British," are fighting a force of at least 85,000 Japanese in the battle for Java, Dutch sources in London declared today.)

(These sources said the United Nations naval forces protecting the Dutch East Indies island had suffered "a crippling blow" in their attempt to halt the Japanese invasion fleet, and that the two Dutch cruisers which were lost were attacked by a "line of Japanese submarines.")

(London unofficially reported resignation of Vice-Admiral C. E. L. Helfrich as commander-in-chief of the United Nations naval forces in the southwest Pacific.)

The official communique here declared resistance still was stubborn "and in offensive spirit" but the Dutch already had carried out "the principal destruction in Java" to prevent its rich resources from falling into enemy hands.

DETAILS LACKING

It gave no indication whether the new Japanese penetrations had been stopped nor any details either of their depth or direction.

Local successes against Japanese forces were reported by British volunteers, however, who took part in fighting at Soebang, 40 miles south of the Indramajoe beachhead and the point of deepest Japanese penetration toward Bandoeng.

The volunteers said the Japanese had been pushed slowly out of half the village of Soebang when they left and that Dutch forces were attempting to recapture the rest of the town.

Infiltrating Japanese "practically without exception" had been rounded up and shot, these volunteers, members of a home guard unit, reported.

Bandoeng was raided again today by 25 Japanese planes which swept over the city at 15,000 to 20,000 feet in groups of nine, nine and seven, Aneta news agency reported.

Vichy,

March 4 (AP)

The death toll of an RAF raid on the industrial suburbs of Paris last night mounted steadily today, as rescue workers dug through the ruins.

Shortly after noon it was placed semi-officially at 600 with more bodies constantly being recovered.

Earlier, a communique had announced at least 442 persons killed, more than 1000 injured and between 200 and 250 houses destroyed on the basis of preliminary information from the Nazi-occupied French capital.

Many of the wounded died on operating tables in hurriedly improvised hospitals where all available physicians in Paris were mobilized for the emergency.

One report said that of about 1000 wounded in the Boulogne-Sur-Seine and Billancourt suburbs some 300 were feared to be dying.

A new air raid alarm sounded in Paris today at 12:30 p. m. but no bombing was reported.

The new alarm came as rescue workers continued to dig for bodies of victims. About 100 bodies were placed in an improvised morgue in the Boulogne city hall.

All the municipal services of Paris were mobilized to restore lights, gas and water to the damaged areas.

12 TOWNS BLASTED

Along with the bombs, the RAF dropped leaflets addressed to the Paris population saying they had come to bomb factories manufacturing arms for "our common enemy" and would return now that they knew where to strike.

At least 12 towns in the suburban belt around Paris were blasted during a two-hour attack, the announcement said, although the most concentrated bombing apparently was directed at the factory regions of Boulogne-Sur-Seine and Billancourt.

(Authorized sources in London said the huge Renault motor plant was the objective. They declared open weather had enabled the RAF pilots to spot the target area clearly.)

(The attack may mean the end of Allied attempts to coax the Vichy government away from collaboration with Nazi Germany, informed British sources declared.)

(This was the first time the British had risked the anger of the French by a heavy attack on any objective near the German-occupied French capital.)

U. S. NOT CONSULTED

(There was no consultation between the British foreign office and the State Department in Washington before the RAF launched the raid, it was learned.)

NAZIS FACE ALL-OUT AIR DRIVE

London

March 4 (AP)

OFFICIAL NEWS

Sir Archibald Sinclair, air minister, declared today the RAF will synchronize hard blows at German industry and transport with the expected Nazi spring offensive in Russia.

Aided by United States-built fighters and diver-bombers, Britain will demonstrate superiority over the German air force "in the not distant future," he declared.

At the same time, he served notice that Britain would not allow "German production of tanks and tank engines, aero engines and lorries to go on unhindered merely because it is situated in occupied territory of France."

Last night's attack on industrial targets in the suburbs of Paris in which he said some buildings were blown hundreds of feet into the air represented no change of RAF policy, he said.

For five months RAF bombing has curtailed industrial work "in a wide area" about Lille and northern France by as much as 50 per cent, the air minister told the House of Commons.

Britain's spring bombing offensive will be aided, he said, by new British Lancaster bombers, "the most powerful in the world" which are coming into service in "increased numbers" and will be loaded soon with bombs of a greatly enlarged size and devastating power.

The RAF and Royal Navy have virtually closed the Dover Strait to enemy ships which formerly went through at a rate of 25 a month, he asserted.

Significantly, Sinclair asserted, the Germans in recent months had greatly reduced the percentage of divv bombers in their air force because this type is only useful where air superiority already has been established.

Dutch Admiral Gets New Post

LONDON, March 4 (AP)—Vice-Admiral C. E. L. Helfrich has been entrusted with a "special mission" and has been succeeded as commander of the Netherlands Indies naval forces by Acting Rear Admiral J. J. A. Van Stavoren, the Netherlands government announced today.

The statement said Lieut-Gen. Hein Ter Poorten would command the land forces following the departure of Gen. Sir Archibald Wavell, former supreme commander of the United Nations southwest Pacific forces.

Gov-Gen. A. W. L. Tjarda van Starkenborgh Stachouwer announced.

Keep Mum, Chum!

Enemy Ears Are Big!

A SLIP OF THE LIP MAY SINK A SHIP

By AUSTEN LAKE

She was a gentle old lady of the lavender and old lace pattern who had a human hobby for chatting with strangers. It was pleasant to relieve her boredom on the crowded shoppers' train to her suburban home. So, from old habit, she entered into casual conversation with a woman seatmate.

"Ah, the terrible war," she tongue-clucked, "My son—that would be George, the second youngest, is first officer on the tanker Trident, just home from Tampico. Poor lad . . . scarcely time for a chicken dumpling dinner . . . and now he's off tomorrow morning at nine o'clock for Corpus Christi . . ."

The seatmate nodded sympathetically and bowed out at the next station. The next day at 11:30 a. m. the S.S. Trident was sunk off Martha's Vineyard by a torpedo and gunfire. Eleven lives were lost, including son George.

He was a clear-eyed, level-jawed soldier of 21, proud of his single-stripe lance-corporal's chevron. The named insignia of his infantry regiment, his buttons and his collar ornaments were bright with polish. Now, as he perched on a stool in a corner drug store, he told his neighborhood school friends that this was his last 48-hour leave.

"Showing off on the trooper Martin Douglas tomorrow at twilight . . . they say it's the Canal Zone . . . yeh, me and 6000 other guys . . . toddle-oo."

A lean, taciturn man in a black overcoat listened as he thumbed leisurely through the store's magazine stocks. Presently he bought a periodical and went away. During dawn hours, two days later, the Martin Douglas and her escorting destroyer were crippled by direct torpedo hits and after heroic effort limped back to port.

She was a sweetly garrulous young thing with a tip-tilted nose, periwinkle blue eyes and a youthful zest for life. The glitter of the hotel cocktail bar's crystal and gilt, the gay laughter and pleasant surroundings brought a flush of excitement to her cheeks.

"Barney was sayin' . . ." she told her neighbor, "Barney, that's m' boy friend who works in the Mercantile Shiploading Company at Myer's Wharf . . . he says we got two boats goin' out loaded with tanks, 200 of 'em fresh from the Arsenal . . . yeh, lease-hold stuff for England . . . goin' Thursday to Halifax . . ."

Friday morning off the cod banks of Nova Scotia the two freighters slide to the sea bottom, victims of mysteriously-set incendiary bombs which kindled instant raging fires. The ships sank swiftly with their heavy loads while Allied destroyers, summoned by wireless, picked up survivors from life rafts.

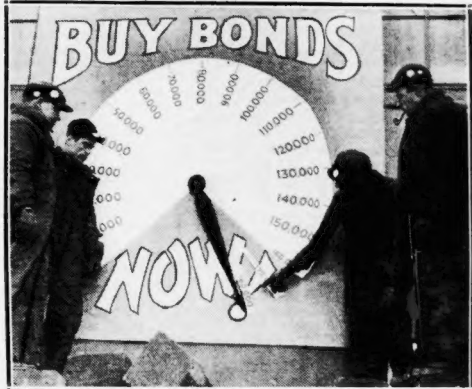

Imaginary happenings? Yes! But duplicates of what may have occurred many times since December 7, 1941—result of the human long-tongued tendency to share a secret; to demonstrate that they "are in the know!"

Don't doubt that enemy ears are listening! In the key cities of this

LAWLEY'S WORKERS LIFT BOND-BOMBER PLEDGE TO $200,000

REGISTERS BOND SALES—Keeping account of the defense bond sales by George Lawley and Son Corp. employees are these men . . . using a huge "clock" to indicate the amount, $180,000 worth, already bought. Workers have pledged $200,000 to the fund. Shown are (l. to r.) John Deady, James Harold, James Young and Edward Sullivan.

BUY BONDS FOR MASSACHUSETTS BOMBERS! Without ceasing their vitally important work of turning out fighting craft for the Navy, employees of the George Lawley and Son Corp., at Neponset, today, pledged the purchase of $200,000 in BONDS FOR MASSACHUSETTS BOMBERS.

These men whose unceasing labors are giving the Navy new ships to stalk the skulking Nazi submarines realize more is needed for FINAL AND COMPLETE VICTORY. They know BOMBERS will finish the job the gallant sea fighters are doing.

BOMBERS FOR VICTORY!

An inspiring demonstration of the Lawley employees' patriotism was given after the recent double launching . . .

the first in the E. D. Whiting history of the famous yard . . . when 1400 workers trooped into a boat shed and bought $180,000 worth of BONDS in less than two hours.

PROUD OF WORKERS

"We're mighty proud of our workers," Edward D. Whiting, vice-president and general manager, declared enthusiastically.

"The men want to do something more than just 'their bit.' They want to see the ship filled with BOMBERS. They want to feel that every time they see a BOMBER passing overhead that they had part in getting it there."

"I know for a fact that every one of the 1400 workers here joins me in heartily endorsing the Boston Daily Record-American, Sunday Advertiser BUY A BOMBER drive. You are doing a very meritorious and patriotic thing and we wish you every success."

The Lawley yard, one of the oldest and finest shipyards in the country, gained another distinction with their patriotic pledge.

The men by their unselfish and wholehearted support of the BUY BONDS FOR MASSACHUSETTS BOMBERS drive, became the first shipyard workers in America to join the VICTORY campaign ONE HUNDRED PER CENT.

More U. S. Units Arrive In Northern Ireland

WITH U. S. TROOPS IN NORTHERN IRELAND, March 4 (AP)—Thousands more United States fighting men have arrived in a Northern Ireland port to augment the forces that has been in Ulster for more than a month, it was announced today.

Details of the landing were withheld until the soldiers, their guns and equipment had been scattered to secluded spots throughout Northern Ireland and the ships had left port.

Most of the latest arrivals are mid-Westerners who had been training in southern Army camps for a year. They came in full field equipment and with their guns ready.

First man in the ranks to land was Master Sergt. Dorrance Mann, of Council Bluffs, Iowa, who served in the first World War with the

MacARTHUR PLANES IN COUP SINK TWO BIG JAP SHIPS, FIRE DOCKS

WASHINGTON, March 4 (AP)—Two big enemy ships and several smaller vessels were destroyed in a surprise attack by Gen. Douglas MacArthur's small air force on Japanese installations of Bataan, the War Department announced today.

Large fires were started on the docks of Olongapo, former United States naval station in Subic Bay, and on Grande Island, a communication reported. Heavy explosions among enemy stores followed the fires.

One ship of 10,000 tons and another of 8000 tons were destroyed, the department said, and also two motor launches of 100 tons each. Many smaller vessels were damaged.

War Department communique No. 133, based on reports received up to 9:30 a. m. (E. W. T.).

"1—PHILIPPINE THEATER: "In a sudden surprise attack Gen. MacArthur's small air force swept over Subic Bay destroying several Japanese vessels. Among the enemy ships destroyed were one vessel of 10,000 tons, one of 8000 tons and two motor launches of 100 tons each. In addition, many smaller craft were damaged. Large fires were started on the docks of Olongapo and Grande Island. These were followed by many heavy explosions among enemy stores.

"There was practically no ground activity in Bataan.

British Attack Libya Outposts

CAIRO, March 4 (AP)—A British column has "successfully engaged" German forces south of Tmimi in the Libyan battle zone, a headquarters communique announced today.

It said the RAF supported the British advance force's action and reported that artillery fire had forced the withdrawal of several Axis outposts and patrols.

Axis planes ranged over a wide area of northern Egypt early today and caused slight damage by bombing Alexandria, where Britain has her chief eastern Mediterranean naval base.

There were raids also in the Suez Canal area.

Three Year Sentence For Ex-Mayor Lyons

A State Prison term of three to four years for bribery was imposed on former Mayor John W. Lyons of Cambridge today by Judge Harold P. Williams in Middlesex Criminal Court.

BANK BANDITS GET $14,000 IN NORTHAMPTON

NORTHAMPTON, March 4—Two superstitious bandits who discarded a $2 bill as they fled held up the Florence Savings Bank today and fled in an automobile with $14,000.

The $2 bills are viewed with suspicion by many. Both men wore handkerchiefs over part of their faces when they entered the bank in the Florence section of Northampton. One bandit carried two revolvers, while the other had a single weapon.

While the two-gun man kept a teller, Mrs. Amy Walpole, covered, his companion went inside the bank grillwork where there were five other employees. These five workers were forced to lie on the floor behind the grill. Then the bandit with the single revolver scooped the $14,000 into a bag, ordered the five on the floor to remain where they were and returned to the public floor. The two-gun man remained in the bank while his pal went outside and drove a car up to the door. Then the two-gun man, with a parting warning for the bank employees to make no move, departed, entered the car and was driven away.

Judge Williams also ordered Lyons disbarred from the practice of law. Today's action followed a Supreme Court ruling upholding Lyons' conviction on indictments charging him with requesting and accepting bribes from architects on construction jobs.

Paul Mannos of Brookline, previously sentenced with Lyons, was not in court, although final disposition of his case had been expected. Mannos was understood to be testifying before a Middlesex County grand jury. Lyons, displaying no emotion, watched proceedings from a chair near his counsel's table.

DROPS ONE SENTENCE
Judge Williams vacated a two-year House of Correction term originally imposed on Lyons with the explanation:

"I realized appeals would be taken, but I've always felt it was unwise to impose House of Correction sentences where State Prison is to follow."

Lyons was being led from the courtroom when Nelson B. Vanderhoof, president of Middlesex County Bar Ass'n, addressed Judge Williams:

"I recommend removal of former Mayor Lyons from the practice of law."

The judge called Lyons back and Defense Atty. Francis Leahy said he had prepared a letter of resignation for Lyons.

"I feel in view of the seriousness of the offenses that I should order the disbarment of Atty. Lyons," Judge Williams said in declining to accept Lyons' resignation.

Soldier Freed As Kidnap, Held as AWOL

Warren J. Carpenter, 30-year-old Medical Corps soldier, was cleared today in Quincy court of a charge of kidnaping his own daughter.

He was then seized by an Army guard and started back for Saco, Me., from where he was allegedly AWOL at the time of the kidnaping charge.

Carpenter, formerly stationed at Ft. Banks, Winthrop, was placed in the Medical Corps, according to officials, because of his scruples against taking human life.

The soldier, who gave an address in West Newton st., allegedly kidnaped his daughter, Mary Louise, 4, a state ward, from a Randolph home on St. Valentine's Day.

He was picked up by the Army and placed in custody in a camp at Saco. From there he escaped a few days later, barefooted and without an overcoat. Again the Army picked him up, and this time he was turned over to civil authorities for prosecution on the kidnap charge.

Judge Stewart MacLeod dismissed the charge for want of prosecution, and Carpenter was turned over to the Army.

Mary Louise is back at the Randolph home.

CAMBRIDGE MOTHER ACCUSED OF TRYING TO KILL 2 BABIES

After a young Cambridge mother and her two children had been rescued today from their gas-filled apartment, Police Sgt. Charles Warnock of Cambridge obtained a warrant charging Mrs. Iris Lawlor of Cambridge st. with assault with intent to murder her babies.

According to the police report, the 25-year-old mother told officers at Cambridge City Hospital, where she was revived, but held for treatment and mental examination, that she had quarreled early today with her husband, Thomas.

He left the house and then, police said she told them, she took the two children, Virginia, 1½, and Roberts, 3, from their beds, placed them on the kitchen floor and turned on the gas.

NEIGHBOR TO RESCUE

After that, according to the report, she went into the hallway, locked the door between the kitchen and hallway and lay down on the hall floor.

Sometime later, Mrs. George Armand, residing on the floor above, was awakened by the odor of gas and aroused her husband. He found the door of the Lawlor apartment unlocked and entered.

He saw Mrs. Lawlor stretched out unconscious, he said, and when he discovered the door to the kitchen to be locked he forced it open. In the kitchen the two babies were on their feet but they were dazed and weaving around the room.

CHILDREN REVIVED

Armand seized the children and hurried them into the open air. As he reached the sidewalk, Sgt. Warnock and Patrolman Francis O'Connell were passing. They called the station and a radio car and an ambulance were sent to the house.

The children had revived by the time reinforcements arrived, but Mrs. Lawlor was taken to the hospital where she was treated by Dr. Robert Sullivan.

Virginia and Roberts were taken by the officers to the Cambridge Home for Aged and Infirm. Meanwhile, police were attempting to find Lawlor.

600 KILLED IN RAF RAID ON PARIS AREA

Vichy from the time the United States entered the war, this was regarded as highly significant.

(It was argued that an attack on an objective so near Paris would not have been ordered unless the Allies were ready to risk a German propaganda campaign seeking to turn the French against the Allies with stories of destruction in working class districts and to historic landmarks.) The French communiqué stressed the fact that details still were lacking from several communities.

It was reported unofficially that one air raid shelter where 180 persons had taken refuge and which apparently sustained a direct hit still had not been uncovered.

MANY HOUSES DESTROYED

First reports from Boulogne-sur-Seine and Billancourt alone listed 400 dead, 1000 wounded and between 150 and 200 houses destroyed.

The toll from other bombed areas was given as follows:

CLAMART—Two dead, five wounded, 12 houses destroyed.

ISSY LES MOULINEAUX—Seventeen dead, 20 houses destroyed.

VILLE JUIF—Four dead, eight wounded, 15 houses destroyed.

MONT ROUGE—One dead.

NEUILLY—Three wounded by flying class.

VESSINET—A gas plant hit.

Paris Bomb Damage Big, London Says

LONDON, March 4 (AP)—"Much damage" was done, said an air ministry communiqué in the first official account of the Paris air assault.

Last night Royal Air Force bombers attacked the Renault works at Billancourt on the outskirts of Paris, which were known to have been engaged in production of war material for Germany," the communiqué said. "The target was clearly seen in bright moonlight and reports indicate much damage was done."

"A large part of the works was on an island in the Seine. A number of our heaviest bombs fell on the island and on other parts of the target bursting with shattering effect. Buildings collapsed like packs of cards."

A spokesman said returning pilots described how some buildings "came up at them, hundreds of feet into the air." Only two of the raiding planes were lost and casualties were light, he added.

Informed sources believed the way was cleared for the raid by last Friday's attack by British parachute troops on the Nazi radio location station at Bruneval, just north of Le Havre.

They declared demolition of this station had allowed the RAF bombers to cross the French coast and approach Paris undetected, and predicted that bombing of the Renault plant would be duplicated in other attacks on industrial areas in northern France.

Unofficially it was said the bombed plants were turning out 40-man "invasion planes" destined to be used in the eventual all-out attack on Britain.

The British government expressed through an authorized source its "sincere hope" that many French lives had been saved by BBC warnings broadcast in French that targets in the Paris area might be attacked at any time.

be heard, mostly in the direction of the Bandung airport. Smoke puffed up from the direction of the field but disappeared within 10 minutes, indicating that the fire had been extinguished quickly.

Japanese planes also were reported active over other parts of middle Java.

(An official broadcast from Tokyo stated mechanized units of the Japanese army reached a point west of Soerabaya, main base of Java, this morning and there clashed with "Allied forces trying desperately to halt the Japanese onslaught.")

DUTCH PLANES SCORE

(From London came a report that a German broadcast said the Japanese had advanced to about 20 miles from Batavia and that a battle for the Netherlands East Indies capital was in full swing.)

The war bulletin reported heavy Dutch aerial blows against the enemy's airpower. Serious damage was inflicted on hangars at a Japanese-held airport and "a number of enemy bombers were machine-gunned," it said.

SCORCHED EARTH TACTICS

Aneta reports from Batavia said explosions so heavy they shattered window panes. "Tested to the thoroughness with which the Dutch were carrying out their scorched earth policy in the vicinity of the Indies capital."

The city, from which the government has withdrawn to Bandoeng, was said to have had repeated air raid alarms during the past few days.

Aneta dispatches from the Bantam front, where the Japanese gained a foothold some 60 miles west of Batavia, said that up to Monday noon the invaders had not come in contact with the main body of the defense forces.

The Japanese had light tanks in this sector and one Indonesian trooper was said to have sacrificed his life telling off a dynamite charge under a bridge which the invaders' armored units were crossing.

Boys Impersonate Willkie in Hoax

JACKSON, Miss., March 4 (AP)—Wendell Willkie's supposed telephonic acceptance and subsequent cancellation of an invitation to address the Mississippi Legislature was branded a hoax today by CHY prosecuting Atty. J. M. Stockton.

He said two high school boys had admitted impersonation of Willkie.

REDS DESTROY 50 FOE AREAS OF DEFENSE

MOSCOW, March 4 (AP)—Soviet forces have destroyed "about 50 centers of enemy resistance" and killed 650 officers and men in an offensive on the Leningrad front which still is continuing, the Soviet communique announced today.

Soviet soldiers slew 3400 foes in two combat zones above Moscow in 48 hours of action this week and blasted an aerial supply base of the encircled 16th German Army with shellfire, the Russians said today.

"Two thousand German officers and men were killed during the last two days on the Leningrad front," the Soviet information bureau said. "On the Kalinin front the enemy lost 1400 officers and men killed."

Between Kalinin and Leningrad lies the Staraya Russa sector, in which dispatches said a Soviet ring was gradually tightening upon the 96,000 or more men of the invaders' 18th army.

The Moscow radio reported that 51 German transport planes attempting to supply the encircled forces had been destroyed by Russian bombers in the past five days.

Japs in Burma Awaiting Help

MANDALAY, March 4 (INS)—Temporarily stalled by stubborn British land resistance and hampering air attacks, Japanese forces driving into Burma today were reported to be awaiting the arrival of reinforcements from the rear.

The British imperial defenders of Burma and Rangoon had dug in along the Sittang river defense shield during their comparative lull in fighting, according to reports reaching Mandalay, and were awaiting the Japanese assault.

Informed quarters asserted it will probably be at least a week before the Japanese, crippled by recent heavy losses, can renew their attack.

Keep Mum! Enemy Ears Are Listening

country, as in England, Canada and the Latin countries of South America, well-organized agency of the Axis is busy sending grapevine information to their report centers. U-boats with short wave radio receivers may be waiting off shore to pick up shipping tips and defense data from enemy agents who operate delicate, portable sending sets from automobiles along the coast.

Night messages from shielded hand blinkers can be flashed from remotely-located, but artfully designed spots along the coast. Submarine landing parties have been known to steal daringly into some cove and visit American towns disguised as friendly merchant sailors. These things, as a matter of record were done during the last World War and undoubtedly can be done on broader scale now.

Thus, if you know a war secret, no matter how it may have come to you, keep it locked in your mental archives more securely than you would the family jewels.

Less than a year ago when this writer boarded a Canadian troop ship bound for England, a short wave radio broadcast by the notorious "Lord Haw-Haw" from Berlin was intercepted by the ship's wireless in which the infamous traitor gave the full details of our convoy. He told the number of troop ships, the strength of the escort and the British port for which it was bound.

CONVOY ESCAPES

"But" he added in his sing-song lingo, "They will never arrive... not all of them... German U-boats and German dive bombers will be ready to greet them."

The fact that the convoy got through without mishap is incidental to the point. More important is the fact that enemy agents, by means known only to themselves, transmitted the exact news of the sailing to Berlin, including the "carefully guarded" secret that the first complement of graduates from the Empire air plan schools were in transport.

How did they find it out? Plainly somebody talked. Somebody had access to the information.

Later, while I was in London the King and Queen were scheduled to review a division of Canadian troops at Aldershot. Only a few of the high ranking military were informed of the program. Yet, suddenly, on the eve of the review, the royal visit was cancelled. And well it was! For during the ceremony a squadron of Nazi bombers winged over the North sea, brazenly and in full daylight, in an effort to bomb the famous troop center. I learned of the happening belatedly from a British intelligence officer, long after it had occurred, as a sample of enemy facility.

British counter-espionage, by the same devious means, had learned that Berlin had the information.

Who blabbed? What parlor confidante had picked up the news? FBI SPREADS NET

Still later, the night before returning on convoy to this country via a Canadian port, the English shipping base where the convoy of some 26 ships had foregathered, was harshly bombed by consecutive waves of Nazi buzzards. Before that night it had been weeks without a visitation.

It is possible, of course, even probable, that Axis spies will gather vital information without the innocent aid of our loyal, but loquacious citizens. It is, of course, too much to imagine that agents have not wormed into confidential posts here and there. Slowly, as the FBI,

Army and Navy intelligence weaves its entangling web, many of these agents will be snared—not all of them perhaps. But their operations will gradually be diminished with the vital spots. Then the outside machinations of "rover," as the British term outside agents, will increase in importance.

Already the military is taking drastic steps on the West coast to curb careless tongues with the announced arrests of civilians and enlisted men for disclosure of secret information. One, a civilian employee of an air base contractor, was picked up after revealing vital data in a San Francisco bar. The informer who pointed him out to the authorities was a bartender, one of 2000 Unionists who have agreed to tip off the FBI of dangerous chatterboxes.

And today throughout the nation posters are being pinned and pasted on walls with postscripts warning that "loose talk can cost lives!" Some are comic in content and some are gruesome. But all are pertinent to the fact that enemy ears are listening. In French Canada such posters have been displayed in bilingual legends, "Taisez-vous. Mettez-vous. Les oreilles des ennemis vous écoutent!" "Shut up. Pipe down. The ears of the enemy listen to you!"

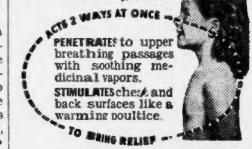

This is America's most perilous period, when troop movements and material shipments are being sent to the far-flung lifelines of the world. They must arrive. Life and property are at stake. Thus, if you know a secret, keep it bottled.

Silence was never more golden.

$200,000 Bombers Pledge at Lawley's

down the ways recently, the men rallied behind their foreman and marched into a boat shed to BUY BONDS.

FOR PATRIOTS ONLY

Over the door which they entered was a sign reading:

"ONLY 100 PER CENT AMERICANS enter here!"

And, no matter what his ancestry, every man passing under that sign proved himself a 100 per cent AMERICAN by immediately purchasing BONDS FOR VICTORY.

High on the wall outside the shed was erected a huge "clock," bearing the message:

"BUY BONDS NOW!"

And as the rapidly mounting total of BOND sales was reported to a group manning the clock, a hand was moved around the clock until the figure $150,000 was reached.

That was the ORIGINAL goal. Now, with today's pledge the men are confident they will go on to $200,000 . . . "and as much more as we can."

Less than three years ago, Lawley's Shipyard was engaged in construction of fine vessels for the peacetime enjoyment of yachtsmen. They had an enviable record of having built some of the country's finest private craft.

Among the Lawley yard's proud boasts is the building of three America's Cup defenders . . . Puritan, Jubilee and the Mayflower . . . all of which brought high honor to America's yachting circles.

But, quietly and efficiently, this plant has shifted from peacetime pursuits to the more deadly and important work of wartime construction. This is the third time in the long history of Lawley's that the yard has been converted to war production . . . in the Spanish-American War, then World War I, and today.

REALIZE NEED

So these shipyard workers know from past experience the vital necessity of EVERYONE doing MORE than his part. That's why today they stand pledged to purchase BONDS FOR MASSACHUSETTS BOMBERS!

Day after day, similar inspiring examples of UNSELFISH support of America's drive for victory are reported. Write of your individual purchases, or those of your club, firm, or fraternal group to the BUY A BOMBER editor, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

Wallace Quits ABC, Name Peterson

Dudley B. Wallace of Springfield, today resigned as a member of the State Alcoholic Beverage Control Commission and Gov. Saltonstall immediately appointed Sen. Tycho M. Peterson, also of Springfield, his successor.

Peterson's appointment, subject to approval by the Executive Council, will be for a three-year term at a salary of $7000.

The Governor also appointed Gregory W. Grover of Washington st., Canton, as special justice of the Southern Norfolk District Court succeeding Judge Warren Patten of Dedham, who died last week of a heart attack.

John Beck, former Chelsea mayor, was named to the Chelsea Board of Excise, succeeding William H. McBride of Chelsea, whose term expired. Beck sponsored the bill creating the board in 1916 when he was a House member.

The following reappointments were made by the Governor: Thomas F. Finigan of Belmont,

State appellate tax board, five-year term at $7000 annually.

Joseph J. Donohue of Boston, Civil Service commission.

Julius H. Soble of Boston, master-in-chancery.

Michael Marron of Cavan, Erie, commissioner of deeds for Massachusetts.

The council approved promotion of Dr. C. Winthrop Houghton, assistant superintendent of Tewksbury Infirmary, to superintendent, succeeding Dr. Lawrence K. Kelley, resigned. The position pays $4500 with maintenance.

Fernand Ducharme of Holyoke was approved as special assistant attorney-general in the Division of Employment Security at $265 per month.

The council granted $300 each to three members of the Ballot Law Commission for their work in connection with hearings on the birth control referendum.

GIN RUMMY SCORES AVERAGE VERY CLOSE

Josephine Culbertson, famed authority on gin rummy, the fascinating card game now sweeping the country, today discusses the way to play to the score.

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

In gin rummy, the game ends when either player reaches a 100-point score. Usually, on the way to these 100 points, the lead will see-saw back and forth. That is one of the fascinating things about the game; most scores are fairly close.

Any card game in which one player or the other is likely to get a commanding lead, so that the remainder is a dull play-off, has little chance to become popular.

In gin rummy, as in most card games, the condition of the score has a profound effect upon the strategy of play. It is possible to give general advice for handling any condition of the score. There are three separate situations:

1—The game is half way along and the score is close; that is, the two players have about 50 points each.

2—The game is in its late stages and the score is close; each player has 80 points or slightly more, so that the game can end in one hand.

3—One player is far ahead, having 80 points or more, while his opponent only has about 20 points.

HOLD FOR LOW COUNT

While the game is no more than half way along and the score is close, you should play normally. That is, during the first few draws and discards you should knock whenever you can; during the next few draws and discards you should knock with a count of about 5; and after that you should play for gin, or for a count of 1 or 2.

But late in a close game, when you and your opponent have 80 or more points each, you should hold on for a very low count.

Spade 6-5-4-3-2
Heart 7—Diamond 7—Club 7.
Heart 4—Diamond 4—Club 2
You could discard the Heart 8 and knock with a count of 6. This, however, is too high. If you knock and your opponent, perhaps by laying off, can tie or beat you he will win the game in that one hand or, with the 10-point bonus, put himself so far ahead that your chance of passing him will be materially reduced. But if he knocks, you may be able to tie or beat him and win the game; or, at the worst, you will lose only 2 or 3 points and the game will still be close.

KNOCKING ADVISABLE

There is, of course, the danger that he will go gin against you, but if his hand is that good he probably could have beaten you anyway.

Holding the same hand, if you are far ahead in the late stages in the game—if, for example, the score is something like 85 to 22 in your favor—you should knock with the count of 6 in the above hand.

You are not particularly worried about losing a hand, for you will still have a commanding lead. The principal danger to you is that your opponent will go gin once or twice and quickly even things up.

When you are far behind, say with the score 85 to 22 against you, the situation changes again. Only by a miracle can you hope to win the game, and that miracle can occur only if you can catch your opponent with a big score. This is unlikely, but you should knock anyway as soon as possible, on the hope that your opponent's hand is as yet undeveloped.

Furthermore, even if you win by only 2 or 3 points, you will get the 20-point box bonus later and this will cut down your losses. Suppose you hold this:

Heart 10-9-8-7
Spade 9—Club 4—Diamond 2—Heart A

After discarding the Spade 9 you can knock with a count of 7. When far behind, you should do so at any stage of the game. You can hope only that your opponent has a high unmatched total, and you will get a big score; or at worst that you can win the hand and assure yourself of the 20-point box bonus later.

TRY FOR GIN

However, even when you are far behind you should refuse to knock when you still have a good chance to go gin by drawing any one of two or more cards. If you can go gin once or twice then the miracle will come to pass and, overcoming your opponent's lead, you may even win the game. Suppose this is your hand:

Diamond Q-J-10-9
Spade A-2-3
Heart 2—Diamond 2
Club 6—Spade 6

You are far behind. You could discard a six and knock with a count of 10, or you can hold your hand, playing for gin.

You should play for gin, even to the extent of throwing one of your deuces away and holding your pair of sixes, so that drawing either six will give you gin. (There is only one deuce—the Club 2, to be drawn, so you have only one chance to get three deuces. Of course if a 6 has been previously discarded you would throw the 6 and save the deuces to reduce your count.)

Tomorrow: How far to trust your luck.

Eire Land of Plenty Compared to Britain

By INEZ ROBB
International News Service Staff Writer

Eire, after 30 months of vigilant neutrality, feels the pinch of war in many quarters. The economic and industrial shortages are many, and unemployment increases slowly but steadily.

Her railroad systems are badly disorganized and many city dwellings cold for want of high grade coal, for which she is dependent on England. Her agricultural economy is seriously affected by England's failure to absorb the food surplus she bought from Eire in pre-war days.

Yet Eire is a veritable land of peace and plenty, over-flowing with milk and honey, by comparison with England or the six north counties of Ulster.

As I looked through Dublin's prosperous-looking streets, war and invasion seemed to belong to another world. I had left that other world behind in one of England's badly battered midland towns, from which it is but 90 minutes by air to peace in Dublin.

Eire's capital of almost a half-million persons is unscathed by bombs.

At night her streets, homes and office buildings, blaze with light. There is no black-out, even partial, in Dublin. Her streets are filled with automobiles; her sidewalks with people whose clothes are newer in cut and fabric than those worn in England, where clothes are so strictly rationed.

FOOD PLENTIFUL

The amount, the gaiety and chic of Dublin's social life was a constant surprise to me. In Dublin, I stayed at the Gresham Hotel. Every night I had to fight my way to the elevators through a lobby and public rooms jammed with handsome young men in white tie and tails (never a dinner jacket!) and pretty girls in billowing evening dress.

The ballrooms of the Shelburne, Iberian and Dublin's other good hotels were likewise pre-empted night after night. Eire's pictorial magazine published charming pictures of hunt meets and hunt balls with the men in formal hunting pink and the women in exquisite frocks.

The fashionable stores are stocked with smart clothes and with innumerable small comforts and luxuries no longer obtainable on the other side of the Irish sea.

So, with the best will in the world, I could not but listen with incredulity while Eire's statesmen repeatedly told me of Eire's desperate food plight. Eire's chief complaint is over the shortage of two basic elements in her national diet: tea and white bread. White bread is now forbidden by law. In its place, the Irish must eat whole-wheat bread which, unfortunately, large sections of the populace do not relish.

NO BLACK BREAD

But there is no truth to the widespread report in this country that the Irish are living on black bread. Ireland's national whole-wheat bread is a delicious, light, fine-grained bread of pale beige hue. It is simply that the Irish, accustomed to white bread, find it difficult to learn to love the whole-wheat substitute. As a result, there is a brisk black market in white flour all over Eire. I thought the national Eire loaf 10 times as appetizing as Britain's national whole-wheat loaf.

"The crux of the situation is bread," the spokesman said when I finally went back to him and asked for an official summary of the food question. "We have a minimum, basic need of 370,000 tons of wheat annually. In 1941, Eire produced only 290,000 tons."

"We had hoped to buy the missing 80,000 tons from America, but since America's entry into the war, we fear we will get at most no more than 40,000 tons."

PLENTY OF MEAT

But in the production of other basic food stuffs, Eire is sitting pretty. She is completely self-sufficient in the production of fresh meat (beef and lamb), in bacon and ham and in butter and eggs, all of which are so rigidly rationed in England.

"We can no longer export butter and bacon to England," he explained, "because England's fixed price for both products is below the cost of production in Eire. Nor is England absorbing nearly as much of our fresh meats as she did before the war."

The citizens of Eire are on a semi-voluntary rationing system with regard to certain foods such as tea, sugar and cocoa.

Sugar, for example, is rationed at the rate of a pound per week per person. This is twice the British ration.

(Tomorrow: More about Eire's wartime pinch.)

Garand Rifle Gift Of Inventor to U. S.

NEW YORK, March 4 (INS)—Canadian-born John Garand admitted that he had turned over his famous Garand rifle to the United States government without receiving a penny of cash or a penny of royalties—and furthermore wasn't interested in getting any.

Reward enough for him, he said, was the message which came from Gen. Douglas MacArthur this week praising the rifle.

MASS BLACKOUT FOR 56 CITIES AND TOWNS

The greatest mass blackout yet held in this country will be conducted March 12 in 56 cities and towns of Region III, Massachusetts Executive Director J. Wells Farley of the Massachusetts safety committee said today.

Nearly 400,000 persons in cities and towns of the Worcester area, which includes 900 square miles, will participate from 9 to 9:20 p. m. The complete list of cities and towns participating in the simultaneous blackout are:

Barn, New Braintree, West Brookfield, North Brookfield, Brookfield, East Brookfield, Attlebridge, Southbridge, Dudley, Charlton, Spencer, Oakham, Rutland, Princeton, Paxton, Leominster, Oxford, Goshen, Auburn, Worcester, Holden, Millbury, Sutton, Douglas, Sterling, West Raynham, Boylston, Shrewsbury, Grafton, Northbridge, Uxbridge, Lancaster, Clinton, Bolton, Keene, Hudson, Marlboro, Northboro, Southboro, Westboro, Hopkinton, Upton, Millis, Medway, Hopedale, Bellingham, Mendon, Blackstone, Milwille, Holliston, Sherborn, Ashland, Framingham, Sudbury, Wayland and Natick.

Tanker Rams, Sinks Ship Off Delaware

PHILADELPHIA, March 4 (A.P.)—The British freighter Cyprian Prince, of 3915 tons, was rammed and sunk by the tanker Voca, 3000 tons, outside the Lewes, Delaware lighthouse, today. Five men are missing.

Farley said all defense plants in the territory will black out in the past. Previously, such factories blazed with lights during blackouts.

At the first sign of Irritation, Sneeze or Sniffle—

GARGLE

LISTERINE, QUICK!

This wonderful antiseptic kills millions of germs on throat surfaces... the very types that many authorities say are responsible for the cold misery you know all too well. At the same time it often relieves irritation of sore throats due to colds. Remember, in tests made over a two-year period, regular twice-a-day users of Listerine Antiseptic had fewer colds, milder colds and colds of shorter duration than non-users. So, at the first sign of trouble, use Listerine Antiseptic and consult your doctor.

QUINTUPLETS relieve misery of CHEST COLDS this good old reliable way

At the first sign of the Dionne Quintuplets catching cold—their chests and throats are rubbed with Musteroil—a product made especially to promptly relieve distress of colds and resulting bronchial and croupy coughs. The Quints have always had expert care, so mother—be assured of using just about the BEST product made when you use Musteroil. It's more than an ordinary "salve"—Musteroil helps break up local congestion! IN 3 STRENGTHS: Children's Mild Musteroil, Also Regular and Extra Strength for grown-ups who prefer a stronger product. This is the eighth in the series of Physical Fitness lessons especially written for Junior Victory Army members by Joe McKenney, associate director of physical education in the Boston Public Schools.

practice to develop strong muscles:

1—TRUNK TWISTING:

Stand with your feet about a foot apart and place your hands at the back of your neck with elbows well back. Twist trunk to the right—back—left. All twisting must be done from hips up. Repeat 15 to 20 times.

This exercise may be done also with arms sideways raised.

2—PUSH-UP:

Fall forward, landing and supporting yourself on the palms of your hands, keeping arms straight. Slowly bend your elbows, touching your chest to the floor. Then push yourself back by straightening your arms to the initial position. Repeat 8 to 10 times.

3—BICYCLING:

Lie on your back, with hands at your sides and palms flat on the floor. Bend both knees and begin bicycling movement, i. e., pushing one foot upward as if you were pedaling a bicycle, while holding the other leg in the bent knee position. Then alternate the feet in a continuous bicycling movement. Do 16 to 32 counts.

4—JUMPING JACK:

Stand as tall as you can with your hands at your sides. Jump, placing your feet apart and at the same time fling your arms sideways and upwards clapping your hands together. With a jump return to the starting position. Repeat this exercise in rhythm 15 to 20 times.

(Tomorrow's lesson will continue a few health habits that should be acquired by all the members of the Junior Victory Army).

'Kings Row' Has Boston Premiere at Met Tomorrow

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 4, 1942

Popular Novel Reaches Screen

"Kings Row," the highly controversial picture based on the best-selling novel of the same name, will have its local premiere on the Metropolitan screen tomorrow.

A glittering galaxy heads the cast, to wit, Ann Sheridan, Robert Cummings, Ronald Reagan and Betty Field. "Kings Row" is the story of a town, a tiny Midwestern town, and of the lives of four young people who grew up there. It is a story of love and hate, bitter tragedy and rich comedy, mixed in just about the proportions that these are mixed in real life.

Miss Sheridan, in her first straight dramatic role, is seen as Randy Monaghan, whose romance and eventual marriage to Drake McHugh (Ronald Reagan) is one of the tenderest love stories in recent literature. Robert Cummings plays the role of Parris Mitchell, the central character in the novel. His early love affair with the hauntingly lovely Cassandra (Betty Field) is another of the novel's highlights.

Supporting players are: Charles Coburn, Claude Rains, Judith Anderson, Nancy Coleman, Karen Verne, Maria Ouspenskaya, Harry Davenport and Ernest Cossart.

Sam Wood, who directed "Good-bye, Mr. Chips" and "Kitty Foyle," directed.

"Melody Lane," Universal musical with the Merry Macs, Leon Errol, Baby Sandy and Anne Gwynne, is the co-feature.

LILLIAN PORTER, one of the Hula maids in "Song Of the Islands," at Paramount and Fenway screens tomorrow.

'Song of the Island' Moves To Paramount, Fenway Screens

"Song of the Island," 20th Century-Fox technicolor production starring Betty Grable, Victor Mature and Jack Oakie, moves from the Met to the Paramount and Fenway screens tomorrow.

The co-feature is "No Hands on the Clock," co-starring Chester Morris and Jean Parker.

The photogenic Betty Grable and Victor Mature, whose acting talents were handsomely displayed in "Wake Up Screaming," find love under a tropical moon in "Song of the Island." Mack Gordon and Harry Owens have written a group of songs especially for the picture.

Rose Hobart and Dick Fucell are importantly featured in the Morris Parker co-starring co-feature, "No Hands on the Clock," which is a comedy mystery.

'Tobacco Road' Opens Monday

Seats go on sale tomorrow at Plymouth box office for the two-week engagement of Jack Kirkland's famous stage play, "Tobacco Road," opening Monday when John Barton will register his 1633d portrayal of that sinful old rogue Jester Lester.

Based on Erskine Caldwell's novel of the same title, the play deals with 48 hours in the lives of a group of penniless sharecroppers living in the back country of the State of Georgia.

These people, illiterate and half-starved, are both amusing and amazing, dwelling contentedly in squalor and poverty because they have experienced nothing else.

Although their lives to the outsider are drab and cheerless, they find plenty of amusement, and as a result the play is packed with humor.

Throughout the five years that John Barton has been starring in

All-Out War Urged for U. S.

Not even the Pearl Harbor and Normandie tragedies nor the recent Jap raid on California that backfired have awakened Americans to the vital urgency of serving their country to the utmost. In the opinion of Reagan "Tex" McCrary, brilliant, young New York Journal-American editorial writer.

McCrary's regular newscast is currently showing on the Old South Newsworld Theater screen. In a happier key, he reports that Hitler is losing two U-boats for every ship of ours torpedoed; the Australians are fighting in Africa, Burma and Rangoon as well as on their own shores and will offer "a MacArthur front" to any possible Jap attacks.

This record-breaking play, he has traveled more than 140,000 miles, appearing in all the important cities, and many more not so important, in 41 of the 48 states of the nation. He has never missed a performance.

She's Glamour Girl of Opera

The Metropolitan Opera Company's glamour girl, Bidu Sayao, has been chosen to sing the two most popular roles—Rosalina in "The Barber of Seville" and Mimì in "La Bohème"—when these operas are presented during the company's 10-day engagement at the Metropolitan Theater on Saturday and Wednesday evenings, March 21 and 23.

The engagement will begin Thursday evening, March 19, and continue through Saturday evening, March 23.

Introduced to this country by Toscanini for his soloist in Debussy's "The Blessed Damozel," the brilliant Brazilian soprano was engaged by the Metropolitan the season following her Philharmonic Symphony Orchestra debut in 1936.

Typically Latin in looks, Bidu Sayao is pretty by every international standard. In addition to her native Portuguese and the Spanish all South Americans know, she also speaks Italian and French and her "American" is improving rapidly.

Born in Rio de Janeiro, Bidu Sayao (pronounced Bee-doo Sigh-yow) confesses to have been "mad about the theater since I was a little girl." Like so many singers, she first was a competent pianist before she studied singing with the great Jean de Reszke.

'WOMAN OF THE YEAR' OPENS AT LOEW'S STATE AND ORPHEUM THURSDAY

Tracy, Katharine Hepburn Co-Star

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer co-stars two of its greatest box office attractions for the first time in "Woman of the Year," in the persons of Spencer Tracy and Katharine Hepburn.

You'll be seeing them on Loew's State and Orpheum screens, starting Thursday.

Tracy plays a two-listed sports editor who has never traveled with the sophisticated international set until he meets Miss Hepburn. The latter is cast as an internationally famous columnist who has never seen a baseball game until she meets Tracy.

Worlds apart, the two have but one thing in common—love. With the two Academy Award winners heading the cast, featured roles are played by Fay Bainter, who has also won an Academy Award; Regional Owen, Minor Watson, William Bendix, Gladys Blake, Dan Tobin, Roscoe Karns and William Tannen.

The director was George Stevens, who directed Miss Hepburn in "Alice Adams."

The co-feature will be "The Man Who Returned to Life," with John Howard and Lucille Ballbanks.

FOR VICTORY: BUY BONDS—Copy of 'Kings Row' Good for Met Ticket

During the showing of "Kings Row," which is to have its local premiere on the Met screen starting tomorrow, those donating a copy of John Bellaman's best-seller from which the picture was adapted to the Victory Book Campaign will be admitted free.

'Watch on the Rhine' Opens 2 Weeks' Run Here March 16

After a run of nearly a year on Broadway, during which time it received numerous honor awards, "Watch on the Rhine," Lillian Hellman's prize drama, will begin a two-week engagement at the Colonial Theater starting Monday, March 16.

For the Boston stay, which immediately follows New York, and the subsequent road tour, Herman Shumlin will present Miss Hellman's eloquent play exactly as it was seen for 376 performances at the Martin Beck Theater, with the famous cast headed by Lucile Watson, Paul Lukas, Mady Christians, George Coulouris and John Lodge. The phrase "Herman Shumlin presents" has acquired important significance to theatergoers. Audiences who have witnessed the matchless performances of "The Children's Hour," "Grand Hotel," "The Little Foxes," "The Male Animal" and "The Corn is Green," currently on tour with Ethel Barrymore starred, may anticipate the arrival here of "Watch on the Rhine" which is said to have the most flawless cast ever assembled in any of Mr. Shumlin's plays.

TORPEDOED DESTROYER'S CREW CALM AS SHIP SINKS AND 100 DIE

CAPE MAY, N. J., March 4 (INS)—A graphic story of calm action as their ship buckled under the impact of torpedoes and exploding depth charges was unfolded today by the 11 survivors of the U. S. Destroyer Jacob Jones.

The destroyer was torpedoed without warning with the loss of more than 100 lives, including the captain, Lieut. Comdr. H. D. Black. The nine enlisted men and two apprentice seamen, who were rescued from life rafts four hours after their ship was hit by torpedoes from an enemy submarine Saturday, told of sipping coffee and donning heavy underwear before braving the perilous sea.

All the survivors save Thomas R. Moody of Franklin, Ky., were amidships when first the bow and then the stern of the destroyer were ripped off by the explosions. Moody said he was in the aft engine room when the explosions occurred.

Lieut. Bronstein Richard Dors

"I reached for my coat and life-jacket and rushed topside," he related. "There I helped cut loose three of the life rafts. They were all that were launched. We tried to get the lifeboats down but for some reason or other we couldn't."

"Then I went to the galley to get some coffee with three others," Moody added. "We had plenty of time, about an hour."

While they were drinking the coffee Moody found some heavy underwear in a locker.

"I put on three suit under my coat and life-jacket and handed a lot of it to the other men, who did the same."

The amidships section remained afloat for about an hour. Moody said he went back on deck, cut loose three life rafts and hurled them overboard to men in the water. Then he jumped in the water and scrambled on a raft with 13 others.

Eight N. E. Men Lost On Destroyer, 4 Saved

The New England lot in the sinking of the U. S. Jacob Jones, torpedoed off New Jersey with loss of more than 100 lives, today was listed as eight dead and four saved.

Survivors in this area were Itchard Dors, 25, of North Montello at Brockton; Woodrow R. Russell, 21, of Merrimac at Lowell; Albert Oberg, 23, of Peabody, Vt., and Adolph Storm of Bridgeport, Ct.

"Survived Jakey sinking. Feeling O. K."

Peter Tarsa was the message received by Mr. and Mrs. Peter Dors from their son, Richard, a first class machinist's mate, "Jakey," is the nickname for the destroyer.

Listed among the missing by the Navy department was the destroyer's skipper, Lieut. Comdr. Hugh D. Black, 33, of Lloyd st., Winchester; Reed Parker, 21, and his brother, Roy, 18, both of Westboro. Peter W. Tarsa, 20, of Lowell; Chief Petty Officer Walter McHugh of Sidney st., New Bedford; Lieut. Ben R. Bronstein of Manchester, N. H.; John F. Murray, 27, of Portland, Me., and John J. Plante of Fitzwilliam, N. H.

Flying Long Dream Of Boston Air Hero

made up. In fact the proud father announced here the following year:

"The rascal fooled me completely. He's now in flight training at Pensacola."

In the summers of '37-'39, young O'Hare came to Massachusetts to be with his father and visit with his new-found friends in Greater Boston and the South Shore. He was a yachting enthusiast and sailed regularly from Cape Cod cliffs.

At that time, the aviator who in his six-bomber, one-afternoon victory, broke all records for air destruction, owned 450 shares in the Dighton dog track. They were placed in his name by his father and were sold out with those of the elder O'Hare when the family severed connections with the track in 1940.

At other times Lieut. O'Hare lived in St. Louis where his widowed mother now lives. It was in that city she heard the proud Navy aviator, that young Lieut. O'Hare had carved more planes out of the skies in a single day than ever had been shot down before.

MOTHER COLLAPSED

Records of all was revealed today that the nearest approach to O'Hare's amazing feat was the loss of five planes of David I. Ingalls, shot down in one day in the last World War.

During the present war, it was announced that an American volunteer aviator in Burma, not yet identified, shot down four planes in a single day.

Hearing of the action by radio and catching mention of her son's name, Mrs. Selma O'Hare for a moment almost collapsed. She at first thought he might be a casualty.

But the announcer then continued his account—telling that the former Bay State had accounted for his six ships single handed.

JUST AVERAGE BOY

"I'm the proudest mother in the land," she told reporters.

"Oh, but I was thrilled when I heard his name over the radio. I darn near fainted at first. My heart sank, for I thought maybe they were going to say he had been shot down in action. But when they said he had shot down six Jap bombers I hardly could contain myself."

"My boy always was crazy about airplanes. From what I can learn I hear that two of the 18 Japs that flew that afternoon got away. He should have got them too."

"Eddie was just an average American boy," she continued. "He had wanted to fly a fighter plane even before he went to the academy. Now it appears he is pretty good at it. I just hope we get more and more like him."

Mrs. O'Hare said she last had heard from her son in January, when he assured her that everything was "just great."

The youth attended Western Military Academy at Altam, Ill. He received his flight training at Pensacola, Fla., and San Diego, Cal., and was commissioned a lieutenant in January, 1942.

Eddie was a husky when he entered Western Military Academy that his mates soon had him nicknamed "Nero" in the same vein of humor that brings the tag "Shorty" to a lanky lad.

But at Pensacola Naval Air Station, O'Hare's nickname became "Butch," and it is that nickname which he bears among his flying mates in the south Pacific theater of the war.

MARRIED LAST FALL

Last September he was married to Rita Wooster of St. Louis, who now is living in Keosauqua, Ia. O'Hare will be 25 years old on March 13, which happens to be a Friday, the 13th.

During his stay at Western Academy, from 1927 to 1932, officials called him an outstanding cadet. He was active in the Football and Rifle Club, in dramatics and played varsity football for two years.

He has two sisters, Mrs. Paul Palmer and Mrs. Philip T. Torres, Jr., both of Phoenix, Ariz.

Naval authorities have not disclosed the dying details of Lieut. O'Hare's record-breaking feat. They did not tell whether his enemy "kills" were two or four-motored bombers. The two-motored bomber would carry a crew of six to nine men, and a four-motored ship probably nine or more.

So the score of young Lieut. O'Hare today reads pretty close to two score Jap airplanes—sky raiders who'll find no more.

$16,505,331 for Massachusetts Bomber Campaign

The Secretary of the Treasury, Washington

Mr. William Randolph Hearst, Wynton, McCloud, California.

Dear Mr. Hearst:

The "Buy a Bomber" campaign now being conducted by your newspapers parallels the plan whereby the people of certain cities have provided funds for military equipment by the purchase of Defense Bonds and Stamps.

The regular purchase of Defense Bonds and Stamps by every American is a program which gives each of us continual opportunities to strike added blows for freedom. Your newspapers are making a real contribution to this program.

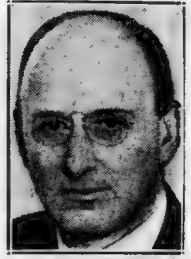

—Sincerely, HENRY MORGENTHAU, Jr.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST

Here's how to stipulate that your bonds are purchased in connection with the BUY BONDS FOR MASSACHUSETTS BOMBERS campaign. You will find on the left-hand side of the green application blank, opposite where you write the name with which the bond is to be inscribed, the three words:

"Buy for Defense." Immediately above this is a small space in which you can write, "Massachusetts Bombers Campaign." Write only in the space described. BUY BONDS FOR MASSACHUSETTS BOMBERS. In this way your bonds will buy bombers in honor of Massachusetts. More than $16,500,000 already has been pledged. Story on Page 3.

SECRETARY MORGENTHAU

year-old Lowell boy, whom the Navy reports to be "missing in action." When he left home three months ago, Peter told his father and mother: "If you ever get a telegram about me being lost or killed, don't cry about it. Just remember that I'm fighting for my country, and that whatever I do—dying or fighting—I'm happy because it's for my country." We hope Peter lives. His Americanism is splendid and inspiring.

WITH all the rapidly multiplying government "information services" just how much real and valuable "information" have the people got out of them?

These "information services" are costing the taxpayers $27,000,000 a year.

They employ 2995 persons on full time and 31,618 on part time. What most of them hand out is not information at all.

It is PROPAGANDA—propaganda for "confidence" in the Administration.

The people DO want information.

They want FULL information as to what happened at Pearl Harbor.

They want MORE information as to WHY the Normandie lies in the Hudson river mud.

They want to know WHY the Office of Facts and Figures has no facts or figures of any importance.

They want to know WHY the Office of Civilian Defense is not under the command of an Army officer.

They'd like to know WHAT is being done about excess profits for war contractors.

They want SOME information about a price-control bill that doesn't control prices.

They want A LOT of information about non-defense "pie-counters."

They want some ENLIGHTENMENT on the growing number of "exempt" and "deferred" professions—and the "drags" thereof.

They'd like to know—truthfully—what political influences prevent aid, IF ANY being sent to the brave General MacArthur and his heroic soldiers.

But the "information services" that are costing them at the rate of $27,000,000 a year will tell the people NOTHING ABOUT THOSE MATTERS.

If a citizen, even timidly, asks about these things he is made to feel that he is an "isolationist," or "on the borderline of treason" or something else equally as absurd.

The MacLeish and affiliated "services" of public information will not hand out unpleasant "facts and figures."

They are in reality, slushing FACTS.

Their "information" is treacle for children.

There is too much "COMPLACENCY" and BOUQUET-TOSSING at one another on the Washington stage.

It is the people who are NOT "complacent" and who WANT TO KNOW the facts.

A NEW ALTAR

is being installed in St. Patrick's Cathedral, key church of New York's Catholic Archdiocese.

Constructed of polished marble and set beneath a canopy of gold and bronze, from which hang rich brocades, the altar will be one of the most beautiful in the world.

When the war started, Archbishop Francis J. Spellman considered the advisability of suspending work on the altar, but, after consultations with government authorities, he found that the construction had progressed so far that the material could no be processed advantageously for defense purposes.

He therefore instructed the artisans to continue.

We admire the Archbishop's decision, and we believe that historians of the future will call it an important one.

It is a glorious affirmation of the fact that in free America altars are still being raised to the honor of God while, in less fortunate countries, temples of worship are crumbling with the civilizations that erected them.

On The Side

O. W. HOLMES.

GRANTLAND RICE, the sport-scribe, who in my opinion has written poems as good as those of Oliver Wendell Holmes and Longfellow, once wrote a poem "Only the Game Fish Swims Upstream." I'll quote it some time soon . . . The dachshund is a hunting dog. Bird to hunt wild boars. And now look at most of the poor dachshunds in this country. They are owned by women and treated like Pekinese . . . As a test for inebriates the Philadelphia police department continues to use the sentence: "Susie sat in the soup" . . . "On the Pacific Coast salads are served before the entree," says an evidently shocked etiquette expert. Whether the procedure is right or wrong, the time I like to have my salad is before the entree.

PLEASE NOTE! Joan Davis is my favorite comedienne. After her Ethel Merman. And then Betty Hutton. I think these three are as clever as any comedienne of the past . . . Seems hard to believe that nearly seven years have passed since William Powell, Jean Harlow, Myrna Loy and Spencer Tracy made up a truly all-star cast in "Libel'd Lady." But such is the case . . . In 1935 Arthur Hopkins, after seeing a stage performance by Barbara Stanwyck, said: "She is the best and most important actress in the last 50 years." Mr. Hopkins covered a lot of territory with that remark. I think Barbara is cleverer out not in the same class as Jeanne Eagles.

BRIEFLY: Anthony Eden at 21 years of age was in World War I, the youngest brigade major in the British Army. Sportscribe Bill Corum, at 23, was the second youngest major in the World War I A. E. F. . . . At the peak of Nazi air raid attacks on London, 1,000,000 people took advantage of the subways and public air raid shelters. Two million people stayed in private air raid shelters. But no less than 4,000,000 Londoners didn't go to any air raid shelters at all. They stayed at home . . . The final step taken by the Japs in forcing surrender at both Hong Kong and Singapore was the cutting off of the cities' water supplies. Incidentally, the Los Angeles city records show that during the years before this war many written queries were sent in by Japanese residents of that city asking for explanations as to the workings of the city's water supply. One brazen Japanese consular official even requested diagrams.

SIDELIGHTS: In that much-discussed Southern California air raid the part of the U. S. Army stationed there clearly demonstrated one important thing; they were at their guns ready for action. Ah, if that had only been the case at Pearl Harbor! . . . An interesting book to read again at this time is Tolstoy's "War and Peace" . . . Contemporary refers to "The Hatchet-Swinging Anti-Saloon Crusader, Carrie Nation." Her name was not Carrie but Carry. I have heard that Carry founded a home for drunkards' wives, but never learned where this unusual establishment was located. Speaking of drunks, you don't see nearly as many as you did before and during the days of Prohibition. Yet it is said more people drink strong liquor now than ever before. I guess the liquor is not as strong as it used to be.

IRENE DUNNE
Avoids Bathing Pictures

ALMOST CONFIDENTIAL: Of the leading feminine film stars of the moment Irene Dunne is the only one who has never been photographed in a bathing suit . . . What a lift it is to the morale of the American people to note in the midst of all the headlines heralding tales of gloom to see the one that was in the paper: "MACARTHUR ATTACKS: JAPS THROWN BACK." What a man MacArthur is? I wish he was in charge of everything that has to do with the defense and offense of our armed forces . . . What about that flying submarine the Japanese invented a couple of years ago? That invention is no myth. Its ability to operate under water and in the air was demonstrated. Perhaps this might explain the "mysterious" planes on the California coast.

ASIDES: Many skilled laborers in Detroit are earning as high as $125 a week. But they have to work 70 hours a week. I think that is far too many hours for a man to work and believe it decreases his efficiency . . . A domestic science expert says a smart housewife can feed a family of five very well on a food budget of $15 a week. How are you doing, lady?

STEINBECK TO WED
PHONE GIRL?

By Dorothy Kilgallen

NEW YORK, March 4—Tommy Dorsey and his former vocalist, Edythe Wright, have patched up their quarrels and are ready to announce the wedding date . . . The George Schrafft's (she's Mrs. Victor Mature's sister) are knitting tiny garments . . . John Payne's big new interest is Elinor Troy, the showgal . . . John Steinbeck, the writer, is awaiting final divorce papers. Friends hear he'll marry a Washington telephone operator almost immediately.

Fine tiff going on at the Yankees' baseball training camp—between Buddy Rosar, the catcher, and Ken Sears, rookie son of Umpire Ziggy Sears . . . The runaway debbies, Hope Carroll and Connie Sneed, have returned from their Miami escapade.

Joan Crawford's constant date is young Glenn Ford . . . Esme O'Brien, of society, is engaged to Robert Sarnoff, David Sarnoff's son. Her sparkler is a honey!

MERRY FAHRNEY, the "madcap" heiress, is in Brazil—trying to get to Europe to join her sweetheart there, intimates say . . . The Navy takes Frank Farrell this week. If he's as fatal to the Japs as he was to the glamor girls look out, Hiro-rto!

Hazel Forbes, who is being re-wooded by Harry Richman, received a package from him over the week-end—400 feet of movie film taken at their wedding . . . Reports from high Washington quarters indicate that all gasoline for pleasure cars will be banned before the summer.

Herb Ackenberg, vice-prez of CBS, and Ann Eden, the microphone charmer, are a heartilry barrage . . . Wing Comdr. P. C. Pickard, who led the British planes in the raid on the Nazi post at Bruneval, is the brother of Lady Hardwicke, Sir Cedric Hardwicke's wife.

LEIF ERICKSON, the actor, and Evelyn Ankers, the imported beauty, are a Beverly Hills buzz . . . Priorities on glycerine will force some of radio's oldest soap operas off the air within the next few months.

Carrot-tressed Jerry Lowe is leaving the Martinique show because it interferes with her romance with Dick Fishell, the sports commentator.

The girls selling defense stamps in Lindy's have averaged better than $5000 a week in sales . . . Mrs. John LaTouche lost her mother and grandmother within 36 hours last week.

NEW YORK'S BURLESQUE-ban has caused a boom in the girls shows of nearby Eastern towns. They advertise their strip-teasers as "So hot New York has refused to let them play!" . . . Alexis Thompson has been Ann Shirley's guide to Manhattan night life.

The William Spiers (Dorothy Lowell) are lullabying an 8 pound 12 ounce boy in LeRoy . . . Madeleine Carroll and Charles Martin are hurling stilettoes . . . The wife of one of Broadway's favorite figures prefers his best friend—and doesn't know that everybody knows it!

Evelyn Moriarty, the Coast showgirl, has been ill ever since the Army got Burgess Meredith . . . Seems ridiculous to think that Abbott and Costello would split, but the rumors persist—despite their denials—that the boys aren't getting along.

FRIENDS SAY Joseph Kennedy's daughter, Agnes, is betrothed to an RAF pilot . . . Phyllis Brooks is fancy free again. That girl! . . . Gaylord Hauser left Garbo "alone" long enough to dine with a blonde at Essex House the other evening.

Sally De Marco is performing in "Banjo Eyes" with a severe chest cold that keeps her in bed when she's not on the stage . . . An admirer has presented Leonora ("Blithe Spirit") Corbett with her first "fridge"—electric refrigerator to you!

JUDY SAVOY, who two years ago was the dancing toast of Paris and London, is studying to be a nurse at Gotham Hospital, N. Y. . . Glamor note: Gene Tierney, doing the cafe circuit, wore the same white dress three nights in a row. (And on her it's becoming.)

Una Merkel has gone back to the Coast to be with her mother in case the Japs attack the West Coast . . . Lucinda Ballard, the costume designer, was two hours late for a rehearsal of the Miltzi Green-John Buckmaster show, "My Dear Public," on Saturday. She had fainted in a cab on her way there.

Deanna Durbin is here, suffering from a bad cold . . . Bill Buckner won't be able to consummate his proposed trip out of the country until—his fine is paid—and so far it hasn't been.

ANN SHIRLEY

BOSTON after DARK

By GEORGE HOLLAND

IF HE CAN get the Colonial Theater for a date in mid-May, Mike Todd will open his "glorified" burlesque show in Boston . . . Bobby Clark and Gypsy Rose Lee will co-star, and so will Jawn Barrymore if the remote possibility that he can interrupt a radio contract eventuates . . . The Todd idea is to stage a silky extravaganza on burlesque, with Hassard Short, whose good taste in costuming, scenery and lighting is legendary at the directing reins . . . Top prices will be charged. Mike is dickering for a New York Theater whose owners would tolerate a change of name to "The Gypsy Rose Theater." (This idea may be cancelled) . . . Johnny Green (of Harvard) has written several of the tunes.

THERE IS A CHANCE that Carleton Bates, the Boston composer who has burst onto the Tin Pan Alley scene suddenly, will contribute additional numbers . . . Bates has been leading a small band in intimate rooms, such as the Lenox V-Room, formerly the Blue Train . . . He plays piano . . . But how he writes! . . . Harry Link, boss of Feist's, summoned the Boston maestro to New York Saturday, and the two have been in an intermittent huddle over Bates' future musical output . . . The lyricist-composer has more than a score of grand numbers, which, if you can type one man's work by contrast with another's, are Cole Porter-ish.

THAT "INTIMATE ROOM," anticipated so frequently as a needed addition to Boston night-life, seems to be in the process of materializing . . . Arki-Yavensonne, manager of the Fensgate, promises that the hotel's new "Satire Room" will be open some time next week . . . It will seat 120 patrons and has been showered with money . . . Murals will follow the Sardi's (New York) idea, and will be caricatures of personages prominent on the Boston social scene . . . Entertainment will be continuous, Arki-Yavensonne (who still hasn't a first name) declares.

IF THE QUESTION is asked: "How has the war affected the night club business?" a safe conservative answer is "favorably" . . . (We get this query tossed at us a dozen times a week) . . . The past three weeks have been the heaviest in the history of the Latin Quarter . . . The Mayfair's books show gobs of black against the week featuring Lou Holtz and John Holes. Erik Rhodes, featured entertainer, is doing well, too . . . The long bar at the Coconut Grove has been a few furlongs too short to care for the Saturday night trade, and the Rio Casino, with Benny Drohan and Helen Carroll as the lures, has been thriving . . . Tommy Maren's Beachcomber maintains an even and profitable pace after a year and a half's existence . . . The Beachcomber was designed as a stylized room, where bamboo curtains flap and the atmosphere simulates the exotic . . . (Some of the wisecracks gave the place a small chance of surviving after the novelty became frayed, but the astute Mr. Maren is not in business merely for the fun of having Filipino boys serve chow-mein).

LOVELY HELEN CARROLL
Delights Rio Casino Patrons

THE LATIN QUARTER attributes recent high prosperity directly to the fact that some patrons are handing more money than ever before, due to war work . . . Many of them are realizing, for the first time, a thwarted ambition to become night club-goers . . . Steve, who takes the reservations and cars it over the who-gets-which-table department, says that the first question of most telephone callers is "What is your cover charge?" . . . Cover charges haven't been in effect generally since Repeal, and this leads the management to deduce that most of these callers are strangers to the nightclub routine . . . When told about the prevailing minimum charge, these new customers want it explained . . . Next comes the question: "How much are dinners?"

DESCRIPTION OF A GENIUS (By the great Joe E. Lewis): A guy with a shine in his eyes—and pants to match . . . And a new Goldwynism, perpetrated while Sam was supposed to be outlining a desert island story: "I want the hero and heroine to be shipwrecked on a desert island—where the hand of man has never before set foot."

LaGUARDIA TO PLAY
FILM ROLE

By Louella O. Parsons

Mayor LaGuardia

HOLLYWOOD, March 4—New York's Mayor, Fiorella LaGuardia, "The Little Flower," will no longer blush unseen on account of Sam Goldwyn is putting Hizzoner in the movies. What's more, he will play himself in "The Pride of the Yankees" in a sequence being shot in New York. The Mayor, a great baseball fan, was very close to the late Lou Gehrig. He made him parole commissioner and it was the "Little Flower" who paid the now famous tribute to Lou at the Yankee Stadium.

When I was in New York two years ago I remember Hizzoner was staging a private campaign to bring the movies back East. He said he didn't see why at least half the pictures shouldn't be produced in or around New York and he really went to bat for his idea. In spite of his enthusiasm, he didn't get very far. Well, if LaGuardia didn't succeed in bumping the entire industry back to it, he has succeeded in getting one of the Goldwyn camera crews to take his picture.

STRIP-TEASE GIRLS will have no part in any movie if the Hays office has its way. In other words Gypsy Rose Lee's book, "The G-String Murder," will not be filmed in its present form. United Artists bought Gypsy's novel and it had a lot of publicity at the time it was published.

The story in itself is innocuous enough, but the fact it features a strip-tease dancer would probably let the Hays office in for a lot of criticism.

Seems to me in this instance the Hays office is right. Why start trouble? There are certainly more elevating subjects for movies.

THE UNPREDICTABLE John Garfield, about whom there are always so many rumors this winter gets dizzy trying to check them, is now slated to star in "The Bad, Bad Boy." Remember that is the Richard Barthelmess movie in which Dick played a prize fighter?

Warners have been talking about remaking this fight epic for at least two years—mostly with George Raft in mind.

John goes East for the Navy show and to make appearances at the various Army camps. Then if he and Warners don't again change their minds he will play the gentleman pugilist.

THE TITLE "Hitler's Valet" suggests all sorts of comedy and it probably will be nonsense of a high order since it's a Hal Roach movie. It's Glenn Tyron's first production assignment for Hal and, thank goodness, Mr. Roach has gone back to comedy, the thing he does so well and which gave him his reputation as a producer.

The plot of "Hitler's Valet" is being kept under lock and key, but we are told the ex-paper hanger, Hitler, the former strike-agitator, Mussolini and the yellow-hued Hirohito will all be with us in their true colors.

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Victor Mature and his estranged wife, the former Martha Kemp, kept a date Saturday night, but friends say there will not be a reconciliation; Dennis Day, one of Hollywood's best singers, and Linda Brent, youthful actress, a Hollywood tropics twosome; now it's Linda Darnell that Vic Orsatti is beaming here and there; Wayne Morris and his bride at the Beverly Tropics. They couldn't get away on a honeymoon on account of the Navy paged the bridegroom; the Robert Cummings celebrated their eighth wedding anniversary Saturday night with a big party at their valley home; Geraldine Spackles and Joe Allen, Jr., romance is hotter than the July sun; Fanny Brice is down to 102 pounds, much too thin for her; Paul Muni is booked for a Theater Guild show in New York.

The Masked Jury DO MEN CHANGE?

HE TALKS TOO MUCH

LADIES AND GENTLEMEN OF THE JURY: Will the Masked Jury kindly advise me regarding my problem:

I am a college graduate and earn a good living as a governess. I live on a farm in the country and the nearest house is about a mile away. About two years ago I met a young man and we both took to each other from the start.

This young man is honest and ambitious, but although he makes between $40 and $50 a week he never saves any of it. In fact, he is usually broke from one pay day to the next. Do you think if we got married he would change this bad habit and look ahead?

Another thing about him which worries me is that nearly every time we go out for the evening he usually monopolizes the conversation and contradicts people.

My brother thinks I should give him up, as he claims he is not my equal.

Do you think as time goes on he will change for the better?

ANXIOUS.

HOW THE JURY VOTED
Women: Yes, Four; No, Two Men: Yes, Three; No, Three

DRUGGIST: Yes. Lots of men talk too much. If she diplomatically tells him he talks too much maybe he'll quiet down.

OFFICE WORKER (woman): Yes. But if she loves him so much she had better start reforming him before they get married instead of later.

BAKERY SALESMAN: Yes. When he starts paying off the mortgage he won't only have to save his money, but he'll be too tired to talk as well.

HOUSEWIFE: No. Men never change for the better. A girl must learn to decide to take them as they are or don't take them at all.

PUBLIC RELATIONS COUNSEL: No. Nothing can be done about the lads who like to monopolize the conversation. They usually die contradicting the doctor.

SALESGIRL: Yes. He'll change for the better if she makes him change. That's her job.

TAXI DRIVER: Yes. If I was a girl I'd rather marry a guy who spends his dough every week than one who wouldn't spend any.

BOX MAKER (woman): Yes. If he only has one bad feature she's a very lucky girl.

GARAGE MECHANIC: No. If he's a wise guy like she says he'll only change for the worse.

NOVELTY SHOP PROPRIETRESS: Yes. It is possible he can be changed for the better if she is clever enough herself.

CONSTRUCTION WORKER: No. If a fellow is talking too much at the age of 34, there's nothing can be done about it.

MILL WORKER (woman): No. He won't change but she oughtn't to be so particular just because she went to college.

WHEN CHILDREN HAVE REPEATED COLDS

It is wise to start building their resistance by giving them Father John's Medicine if their repeated colds are due to lack of vitamin A. It is excellent for children, and is free from alcohol and all harmful drugs.

Father John's Medicine also gives prompt relief from coughs due to colds by soothing throat irritation. It is pure, wholesome, nutritive, and rich in vitamins A and D. Over 85 years in use.

Romance

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

IN AN ADDRESS delivered at Pensacola, Florida, Mrs. Roosevelt cautioned girls against entering into hasty marriages as the result of "patriotic fervor," but made it clear that she did not allude to marriages resulting from engagements over a period of time. Since such selections were a question of individual decision.

While the First Lady did not say so, there is an increasing number of girls who confuse a good-looking young man in a uniform with what they are pleased to call "love at first sight." Such hasty diagnosis of the emotion is reached more quickly if aided and abetted by hands playing, flares flaring and perhaps a lousing yell on patriotism by a spellbinder.

"Love at first sight," or a counterfeit of that amazing and blissful state, may occur as the result of a blind date in which the "blonde" is young, handsome and pledged to give his best to Uncle Sam. Please don't think there is any approach attached to these remarks; girls have been falling in love with men in uniforms throughout the ages.

In such unusual times as war brings about, it is increasingly hard to distinguish between the genuine and the whipped-up emotions brought about by the time, the place and the willingness of youth to get into the stream of things that lead to victory.

But, with the upsurge there is the inevitable reaction: the cold gray dawn of the morning after. Those of us who are old enough to remember the first World War recall with equal clarity the depression which followed.

Mrs. Roosevelt showed clear insight when she said:

"It is probably wiser not to curtail your preparation for life by a hasty marriage because your beau is going into the Army." She further cautioned college seniors to remain in school until they were told they were actually needed. High school graduates and girls with degrees have an easier time getting jobs than those who have quit school without them.

Girls will need every bit of preparation they can muster, not only to meet the present emergency but the future. Hasty marriages made under artificial stimuli—the bands, the flags, the speeches, the heart-breaking farewells—do not always turn out to be of the most durable quality.

Cutting In

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When a girl is larking with a boy, must she stop dancing with him and accept the invitation of a boy who cuts in? BETTY

The girl hasn't any choice about this; she has to dance with the boy who cuts in. If she doesn't like to dance with the boy who has cut in, luck may be with her and some other boy may break in on that dance.

UNIQUE CREAM MASQUE CURBS LINES, WRINKLES

By ARLINE GOULD

A RESTORING, firming and petal-making masque treatment is perhaps the most elegant thing in the world to pick up a dry skin that's getting haggard and lined . . . but there's one overwhelmingly important angle which you shouldn't overlook . . . that the eventual effect of the masque you choose is not DRYING in itself!

You can pretty well tell when a cosmetic has proved its claims to beauty-hungry women . . . and that's when it is constantly on the "must" shopping list of those with particularly sensitive skins. That's the story they tell us about a special facial masque cream that can hardly be kept on the shelves of one of Boston's most conservative finer shops.

It is, within itself, the complete equivalent of a salon facial. You need nothing else with it for a throat and face treatment. While the initial price is not cheap, the number of facials you can eke out of jar, and their uncomplicated simplicity, makes it one of the best values possible.

It's of cream consistency . . . cannot dry the skin, doesn't dry in the process of turning your wan-looking face into a sparkling, camellia-tinted poy.

You may use it going about your household without feeling as though you were wearing a plaster cast on your face. Naturally, it would be best to choose a time when you can lie down for 20 minutes or a half-hour and contemplate the pleasant things that promise themselves to you this spring.

You may have a good, general rejuvenating and beautifying treatment at least twice a week . . . and special occasions besides. But make this a regular thing, not a once-in-the-while pickup.

The directions are so simple! Cleanse the face and neck as usual. Spread a thin film of the creamy masque all over your face and throat. That's all. Remove with tissues in 20 minutes . . . and you'll find the result of that tingling, cool feeling has been a complete removal of tired lines and wrinkles, with pores noticeably less conspicuous!

For all further details on this unique cream masque phone Arline Gould, LIBerty 4000, except the week-end, or write, care of the Boston Evening American, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

NEWS FOR MODERN WOMEN

FOOD

By Martha Lee

VARIETY IS THE MAGIC word in Lenten menus. And it's not so difficult to attain either. Serve fish, of course. There is nothing quite like this food prepared in any one of countless tempting ways—broiled, creamed, au gratin, baked, en casserole, or friend in deep fat.

Men will always sing the praises of creamed finnan haddie. One new version of this old favorite is serving it in rich cream sauce in fluffy nests of mashed baked potatoes.

Be sure to beat the potatoes until light and fluffy after the hot milk and butter are added. Serve them stuffed on a large platter or chop plate with buttered whole carrots and green beans.

CREAMED FINNAN HADDIE ON THE HALF-SHELL

4 tbsp. butter
6 tbsp. flour
2 cups milk
1½ lb. finnan haddie
4 good-sized baking potatoes
4 tbsp. butter
½ tsp. salt
¾ to 1 cup hot milk

Scrub the potatoes, dry and bake in a moderately hot oven (400 deg. F.) until tender, about 1 hour. Melt the 4 tablespoons butter in a saucepan, blend in flour and add 2 cups milk, stirring and cook until the sauce thickens. Wash finnan haddie thoroughly in cold water, cut into small pieces and stir into the white sauce.

CREAMED FINNAN HADDIE on the Half Shell.

Place over boiling water, cover and cook for 1 hour, stirring occasionally. When the potatoes are done, remove from oven and split lengthwise; scoop out potato into hot mixing bowl, add salt and butter and mash until smooth, then add hot milk, using just enough to make them light and fluffy. Beat vigorously. Fill potato shells with mashed potato, leaving a cavity in center of each. Fill to overflowing with creamed finnan haddie and return to hot oven (450 deg. F.) to brown lightly.

ly. Serve at once. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

The way vegetables are served with fish often determines the success or failure of a meal. The vegetables must not only be properly cooked—in very little water, just until tender, then served immediately—but their flavor must blend well with the other dishes.

That's why canned peas keep their popularity as a favorite vegetable in Lenten menus. They are obtainable in every size and flavor, from the tiny, sweet wrinkled variety to the giant size. But regardless of the variety you prefer, they are all alike in their fresh-picked garden flavor, revealing so well the great speed with which they are taken from the vine and canned.

Here is a treat to grace the table during Lent or at any other time. In this dish the mild flavor of canned peas is blended with the goodness of shrimp and mushrooms.

SHRIMP CASSEROLE WITH CANNED PEAS AND MUSHROOMS

Combine equal portions of canned or fresh cooked shrimp with canned peas and fresh or canned mushrooms. Toss these together or arrange in layers in a buttered casserole. Add sufficient medium white sauce to cover and bake for about 30 minutes. Canned mushrooms or celery soup may be substituted for the medium white sauce. If arranged in layers in casserole, have peas on top and then garnish with a whole shrimp when served. The contrast in color is very attractive.

Hashed brown potatoes or French fried potatoes, and buttered peas or beet greens are all ways a good accompaniment for broiled fish.

BROILED FISH

2 lbs. fish fillets
1 tsp. salt
1 tsp. paprika
¼ cup melted butter or salad oil

Wipe fish with a damp cloth. Mix salt and paprika with melted butter or salad oil and brush over fish. Place fish skin side down on well-greased broiler rack. Broil 2 inches from heat about 10 to 15 minutes, until brown and flesh flakes when tried with a fork. Serve on hot platter with lemon butter. Makes 6 servings.

Fashion

CHECKING INTO SPRING will be a quick and delightful transition when you choose one of the tiny-check outfits that's being endorsed on all sides. Molyneux has done a wonderful one with a knee-length tunic and a baby collar. And here's something to make a business or an active club worker wardrobe very gay . . . as well as undeniably practical. It's a suit-dress in teca check, a lightweight worsted-type woven with crimped acetate rayon for extra resistance to crushing and wrinkling. Snug is the jacket with a modified peplum flare that's good for the hip-line. White pique looks sweet as jonquils in bloom.—ANNICE BRINK.

THIS WARTIME SPRING COAT GOOD FOR NOW, OTHER YEARS

By BETTINA BEDWELL

HELEN COOKMAN, who is one of our best designers, has designed the coat that is shown in Miss Dulin's sketch, as a special wartime spring coat. She has made it, she says, with the idea that you'll be able to wear it for more than one year, and for several different seasons.

For right now, when the weather is still cold, the coat is to be worn with its warm and flattering collar and revers of black otter. As soon as it's a bit warmer you can whisk off the fur, as it is only snapped in, and wear the coat as a late spring model. You'll repeat the same process in the fall.

For the material, Miss Cookman has chosen a black shetland wool, very fine quality and warm but not cumbersome. The way the midlines are cut makes this model flattering to figures that aren't so slim any more, and it's good for the youthful body as well.

26 Draft Board to Blame For Williams' Muddle

By HERB FINNEGAN

SARASOTA, Fla., March 4—It doesn't pay to hit .406. It doesn't pay to be named the most valuable player in the American League. It doesn't pay to marry the boss' daughter.

COACH Tommy Daly of Red Sox tutors Johnny Peacock, left, and Bill Conroy, center, in the finer points of receiving from the side lines at the Sarasota camp. Frankie Pytlak, regular catcher not seen in photo, is their subject. Pytlak is now in Class I-A on the draft list so these lads will be expected to carry the Sox catching load this season.

LOMBARDI WEIGHS 217, READY FOR BIG YEAR

By BILL GRIMES

SANFORD, Fla., March 4—Having lost a day because the train which brought his hirelings here was more than three hours late, Manager Casey Stengel had the Braves out at Municipal Park early this morning for the first workout of the 1942 season.

Trainer Ralph May and his assistant Pat Rago, who have been here since last Saturday, had the uniforms assigned but as usual they had to make a few quick changes, for some of the heavyweights streamlined themselves during the off season and vice versa.

For instance, Ernie Lombardi, who tipped the beam in the neighborhood of 233 a year ago, stepped on the scale after taking his first workout with Jim Tobin, and the dial stopped at exactly 217, which is bad news for National League pitchers. At this time last year, Tobin scaled Lombardi's current weight. Today, after three days in camp, he's 196.

JUST LIKE BRAVES FIELD

In all the years that they have trained in Florida, the Braves have never worked out on the equal of Municipal Field Park. Until you observe saw this field, he thought the best ball park in the Sunshine State was at Bartow. But Municipal Field is so far superior to Bartow and all of the other Florida parks there's no comparison.

The playing field is almost an exact replica of Braves Field. It is 350 feet along both foul lines to the center field barrier from home plate. Outside the foul lines, there's enough area for any number of pepper games.

There are any number of golf courses in this state which have greens inferior to the infield. The grass is green despite the recent "freeze," and the turf is firm, not only in the infield but in the outer pastures and all over the spacious area.

Shortly after 10 o'clock this morning, there were 19 players in uniform. Before they were allowed to go out on the field, Stengel held a meeting. Ole Case laid the law down. He expressed the hope that the boys would all take the stay here seriously. He added that he would go along with the hustlers but that the stallers would receive a quick brush off. He impressed upon his charges that every man on the roster was going to start from scratch. And, he also advised them to disregard all rumors they had heard concerning the makeup for the 1942 Braves.

TWO PRACTICES DAILY

With the exception of Alva Javery, Lou Tost and Bob Williams, all of the pitchers are in camp.

Frank McElyea, 6-6 first sacker who hit .401 at Owensboro Ky., in 1940, and .296 at Evansville where he stole 45 bases last season, and Hal O'Connor, former Brockton high school star, are the only non-batterymen in camp.

In all probability after today, Stengel will hold two practice sessions daily. He realizes the Braves are off to a late start and wants to have his pitchers and catchers in shape by the time the rest of the squad reports next week.

This was the consensus among baseball men in the Red Sox camp today after the first flurry of excitement over Ted Williams' draft deferment had died down.

Older heads recall how Hank Greenberg, after winning the A. I. most valuable player award in 1940, was driven by public opinion into the Army, whereas he actually deserved a deferred classification due to his flat feet.

It is easy to recall too how the Chicago draft board put White Sox Pitcher Johnny Rigney in Class I-A despite a perforated ear drum which is supposed to be fatal to a person within firing range. Their ruling later was rescinded by higher authorities.

"MIGHT END BASEBALL"

And so it is with Ted Williams. First reaction among the ball players here, when they heard Ted himself had asked for deferment, was "The worst thing that could have happened. He'll be run right out of the league—this might mean the end of baseball—ne ought to enlist right away" etc.

Before it was bruited about that Ted had sought deferment, most players were for him. They figured him a victim of publicity-seeking draft boards, such as were Greenberg and Rigney.

Who can say yet that Ted isn't? He himself told us over the phone Saturday night that "Neither he nor any member of his family, nor the Red Sox had asked for leniency." Why not take his word for it until the situation is cleared up?

Herbert U. Estrem, U. S. Agent on the Minneapolis Draft Board, said that he (Estrem) had investigated Williams' case of his own initiative and found that Williams' mother would suffer undue hardship were Ted inducted into service.

SOMEBODY'S WRONG

Now comes Col. J. E. Nelson, Minnesota selective service director, saying Ted requested the deferment, that no appeal could be made to the President unless the registrant made the appeal personally.

Somebody is wrong somewhere, because the Massachusetts board and the Minnesota board both claim a U. S. Agent has the authority to appeal a registrant's case without the latter knowing anything about it.

How about pinning the blame on the Minneapolis draft board which voted 5 to 0 to keep Williams in I-A after changing his status from 3-A. Why did they put him in 3-A in the first place? If they knew their business, would the President be reversing their ruling?

Williams takes good care of his mother. He told us himself last year that he had sent her $5000 within that year. His checkbook will prove it. He had his mother's house remodeled at a supposed cost of $2500. He told us his first year up that his ambition was to buy a new home for her and to make her as comfortable as he could.

She had been working for the Salvation Army, and no kid likes to see his mother working when he

Ted Ponders Enlistment

PRINCETON, Minn., March 3 (INS)—Ted Williams of the Boston Red Sox may announce his intention to enlist soon, A. M. Gagen, owner of the Gagen Hotel in Princeton said here.

Williams has spent most of his time since the baseball season ended in Princeton and Gagen said that the ball player indicated he was considering enlistment, although in which branch of the service he did not say.

McCormick Works At Red's Hot Corner

By the Associated Press

TAMPA, Fla., March 4. Outfielder Mike McCormick, leading Cincinnati hitter last season, will be used as a second string infielder, probably at third base, during the training season camp games. The Reds have nine outfielders in camp but only seven infielders.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. Joe Gordon, the holdout New York Yankee second baseman, is so eager to play ball that yesterday he picked up a mitt and "caddied" for Manager Joe McCarthy, who was battling to Shortstop Phil Rizzuto.

DE LAND, Fla.—Arrival of Bob Swift, sophomore catcher, boosted to 13 the number of battersmen at the St. Louis Browns' training camp. The holdouts and the weather, however, continued to play havoc with Manager Luke Sewell's plans.

SAN BERNARDINO, Cal.—The welcome hand was out today for the Pittsburgh Pirates, whose squad of battersmen was due after a final brief workout at El Centro. The remainder of the Pirate squad is expected Thursday.

Bill Baker, young catcher, bagged the first Pittsburgh homer of the season in yesterday's 14-to-1 triumph over San Diego.

HAVANA—Don Padgett's backache and his crop of boils have subsided enough to permit the husky outfielder to rejoin his Brooklyn mates on the practice field, Kirby Elbe, the late reporting pitcher, will start today's game against the Cuban All-Stars.

CLEARWATER, Fla.—Two rookies up from Wilkes-Barre get their first workouts with the Cleveland Indians today. They are Charles (Red) Embree, who won 21 and lost five last season, and Larry Barton, first baseman, slated for a trial at Hal Trosky's old job.

LAKELAND, Fla.—Manager Del Baker of the Detroit Tigers sets a good example for his players. He was the first on the practice field and the last to leave.

"I wish I had a dollar for every fango drive I've hit," said Baker, who has his charges running all over the lot with accurately placed drives.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. Manager Billy Southworth ordered an other routine workout today before dividing the St. Louis Cardinals' squad for Thursday's practice contest which will be a prelude to Friday's exhibition with the New York Yankees.

PASADENA, Cal.—Although the Chicago White Sox had one of the better pitching staffs last year, Manager Jimmy Dykes is looking for even a finer record in the coming campaign. He plans to carry 10 pitchers instead of the customary nine.

MIAMI, Fla.—General Manager Bill Jurges' ultimatum to Bill Jurges, only holdout of the New York Giants, brought a three-word reply from the shortstop: "Daughter is ill." Jurges is in New York, managing his Long Island bowling establishment.

AVAILON, Cal.—The veterans in the Chicago Cub camp got their first taste of competitive work in the club's second intrasquad game today. The rookies played yesterday, with Catcher Clyde McCallum's team triumphing, 17 to 8. Most effective youngster was Henry Wise, Tulsa property but likely to get a Cub bid.

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. At three principals insist that Bill Terry, visit to the Phils' training camp yesterday was purely social. The New York Giant general manager watched the workout from the stands with Phil's President Gen. Hugh Nugent and later conferred with Hans Lobert, the field boss.

ORLANDO, Fla.—Two veterans, Steve Sundra and Walter Masterson, and Kookie Ray Scarborough will pitch for the Washington Senators against the New York Yankees Monday. Manager Bucky Harris has given Scarborough, 20-game winner from Selma, Ala., in the Southeastern League last season, plenty of attention.

ANAHEIM, Cal.—Connie Mack expects Mike Kreevich, outfielder acquired from the White Sox during the winter, to replace Sam Chapman adequately in centerfield for the Philadelphia A's. Chapman enlisted in the Navy several months ago. Kreevich will get his initial test tomorrow against Seattle.

ATTENTION REAL THREAT IN WIDENER

MIAMI, Fla., March 4 (AP)—The public's money will be riding on Market Wise in Saturday's $50,000 Widener Handicap, but another horse has the easy bettor at Hialeah Park worried.

They are keeping a wary eye on Mrs. Parker Corning's Attention, and the trainer and jockey agree that they'd better.

The bay colt started for the first time this winter last Saturday against the best horses in the Widener field, and finished a strong second—two lengths behind Market Wise.

"I never hit him once," Jockey Don Meade revealed today.

"Attention can win the Widener. I never had ridden him before, but I know now that he is a good horse."

"I think he can run his best race coming from behind, but he's a good front runner, too. He can go either way."

The 4-year-old colt has run only 14 times, yet won seven races. He was second three times, and ran out of the money on only four occasions.

Attention will go to post Saturday with an entry with Arnold Hanger's Dit, and Trainer Max Hinger warned against holding his winning mate too lightly.

"Dit isn't just a sprint horse," the trainer commented. "He definitely has a chance."

And remember this, having Dit in the entry won't hurt Attention any."

Mike Belloise Hangs Up Gloves

NEW YORK, March 4 (AP)—Chester Rico, a spindly kid from the Bronx, is downhearted today because he won a fight.

Rico battered his fistic idol, Mike Belloise, for six rounds last night before the referee stepped in and halted the carnage midway in the seventh.

Elated, the youngster skipped to his corner. Dejected, Belloise, who once was recognized as the world featherweight king, shuffled to his corner and announced the end of his 10-year ring career.

That announcement pained Rico more than any of the ex-champion's blows.

"Oh, Mike, I'm just a kid, trying to get along. I didn't mean anything," sobbed the youngster, who lives in the same neighborhood.

Belloise, a brother of Steve Belike, who is campaigning in the light-heavyweight ranks, earned the New York boxing commission's purple marble as the featherweight king in May, 1936, shortly after stopping Everett Rightmire of Sioux City, Ia., in the 14th round of a Chicago bout.

He carried the title until defeated by Joe Archibald of Providence, R. I. in New York city Oct. 17, 1938.

He stepped up into the lightweight division after that with fair success until meeting Low Jenkins, the Sweetwater, Tex., swat-ter, two years ago.

Belloise suffered several broken ribs in that fray before sinking to the resin in the seventh round.

HYDE 'MOST IMPROVED' ON HARVARD QUINTET

29

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 4, 1942

"The most improved player on the team," said Harvard Hoop Coach Earl Brown yesterday. He was referring to blond, six-foot-four High Hyde, sophomore guard, who was tapping in rebounds in an inter-squad scrimmage. For a fellow who never played basketball before coming to college, he was giving an amazing impression of a good player.

Of 2 games played by Harvard this season, Hyde has seen action in only even. His debut Dec. 17, as a sub for George Burditt, was almost pitiful, with gangling arms and legs seemingly unco-ordinated. For more than six weeks after this game, Hyde sat on the bench. His first point was a penalty shot in the Feb. 4 Tafts contest. He subbed for a few minutes against Dartmouth and Columbia, and then, as a surprise starter at left guard in the second Columbia affair, he fulfilled Brown's confidence by scoring 15 points, leading his mates to a 71-54 triumph.

Coincidentally, two of his three starting performances were in games in which the Crimson made its best showing. One was the second Columbia game, and the other against Penn. last Saturday.

Except for one man, Hyde, Brown was undecided about the lineup for the B. U. game tonight at the Harvard Indoor Athletic Building. "Chick" Lutz and Don Lutze bow out of the picture tonight due to scholastic probation.

Brown has mapped his defenses to stop Charley Thomas, who last year was responsible for BU's win.

TED'S DRAFT BOARD AT FAULT

can afford to support her. The fact that he wintered at Minneapolis the past two years shouldn't change the situation. There are circumstances which are keeping Ted out of San Diego at present.

Williams may, as the players as well as fans think, be driven out of the league by public opinion. But it is worth noting that men in the service aren't hollering for his scalp like the non-combatants. There is no ferocity like that of a non-combatant, as anybody who ever attended a fight knows, and it just may be that those doing the most howling have better reason to be in the Army than Williams.

President Roosevelt himself stated he wanted Major League baseball to continue. His only addenda was that those ball players who came under I-A draft classification enter the service when they were called.

The President himself has ruled that Williams is in Class 3-A because of dependents.

The President made the rules and knows them. Wouldn't it be fairer to abide by his word than to crucify a kid as a Grover Bergdoll without knowing the facts?

And how about putting men on those draft boards who will give a ball player as much of a break as they give a shoe clerk?

Pan-American Games Up to Government

LOS ANGELES, March 4 (AP)—U. S. participation in the Pan-American games next November hinges for the present on government approval, President Avery Brundage of the American Olympic games committee said today.

"We have submitted our plans to authorities in Washington," he declared, "and will be guided by their decision. The war effort, course, comes first. In addition, the government almost certainly would have to decide about transportation."

The program for U. S. participation in the games, first of a contemplated series after the Olympic games, remains the same as announced at a meeting in New York in November, Brundage continued. This calls for an American team of about 200.

But no effort has been made to obtain financing pending the government's decision. Money would be raised, he added, as for the Olympic games—partially from public subscription, partially from receipts of preliminary tryouts.

Melrose Defends N. E. Ice Title

Four out-of-staters will open the afternoon first-round play of the annual New England schoolboy hockey tournament tomorrow at the Garden, starting at 2:30 o'clock. Opening the matinee program will be Lewiston, Me., against Concord, N. H. They will be followed by Hamden, Ct., and a team from Rhode Island.

Melrose High, Greater Boston title-holder and defending tourney champion, will make its appearance on the evening card the same day against a Western representative, either Athol or Agawam.

Also to play at night is Waltham, Bay State League champions, and Wakefield, Eastern Mass. League representatives. This game is scheduled for 8 o'clock.

Semi-final rounds will be played Friday night, tomorrow's winners meeting at 8 o'clock and the Thursday night victors clashing in the nightcap.

The finals will be played Saturday afternoon.

$100 HOCKEY CONTEST GAMES OF WEEK OF MARCH 8 TO MARCH 14

Fill out each game with your scores and send it in to the Hockey Contest Editor, Record-American, Box 228, Boston, Mass. Calculate the average scores of the winning and losing teams, omitting those teams for which you have predicted a tie. Your solution must be in this office not later than midnight, Thursday, March 5. Winners will be announced in the Sunday Advertiser of Sunday, March 22. You may use this blank or a facsimile of the same size. In the event of ties, the proximity of estimated scores to actual tallies will determine winners.

The decisions of the judges are final.

First prize, $50 cash.

Second prize, $25 cash.

NEXT 25 will be awarded one dollar each.

An entrant is allowed to submit THREE solutions, one each from the Record, the American and the Sunday Advertiser, although each member of the family is eligible to enter.

Anyone may compete except Record-American-Advertiser employees and members of their families.

EL DIABLO FACES LOSS OF GREEN MASK

Sliding Bill Hansen, exponent of the scientific school of mat study, and El Diablo who scorns science in favor of a poke on a foe's snout, meet tonight at the Arena in Paul Bowser's weekly show.

Hansen has been termed the "man of a thousand holds" and wrestling fans term it a true tag. But the green-masked Diablo has ruined other skillful grapplers with his tough guy style and Hansen will be a fortunate citizen if he's able to prove brains better than brawn this evening.

Not only that, but El Diablo has threatened to remove his mask. If he is beaten tonight, so he has an extra incentive to knock Hansen silly, and keep his identity a major mystery.

The winne plans to challenge The Angel immediately for the world's title.

Tonight's semi-final may steal the show with Wladyslaw Talun, the big Pole, meeting Chief Osley Saunooke, Cherokee Indian. Talun stands 6 ft. 7 in. and weighs 303 pounds and Saunooke tips the beam at 300.

The show starts at 8:15.

War Conditions Cut Williams Schedule

WILLIAMSTOWN, March 4 (AP)—Because of war conditions, the Williams spring athletic program has been cut from 56 games and matches to 13, Albert V. Osterhout, graduate manager of athletics, announced today.

The tennis schedule has been discarded entirely and the baseball list cut to seven games. Only one golfing competition, three lacrosse games and three track meets have been scheduled.

Lack of Snow Didn't Stop Moose Mountain Skiers

By "TAP" GOODENOUGH

Your ingenuity again comes to the fore, even in skiing. At the annual Ski Carnival of the Moose Mountain Club held recently at Hanover, N. H., poor snow conditions caused the cancellation of the slalom and downhill races. Since the snow, however, was skiable in spots, Julian Leslie, manager of this attractive club, decided that contests of some sort should take place. Accordingly, he conceived the brilliant idea of a steepchase on skis.

A course was set up with the following obstacles: A small ski jump, a flush through six gates, a steep ladder, a barrel, fences, and 20-foot plank. The winner was Leon Dion of Hanover, who hurdled his way on skis over the barriers in 46 seconds. Julian Leslie tells us it was a riot to see some of the contestants trying their best to beat the other fellow. There were girls, competing, too.

Many skiers will make the Club their rendezvous this coming weekend, among these being several entrants in the Class C Downhill Championships to be run on nearby Mountaueke. A Class C rating is not necessary to enter the event, but any skiers having a rating better than Class C are not eligible.

Roger Langley, president of the National Ski Association, and C. M. Dole, chairman of the National Ski Patrol System, are now making a nationwide trip through the snow country to the Pacific Coast. The purpose of the trip is not only to visit the 37th Infantry Mountain Regiment at Fort Lewis, Washington, but also to confer with divisional chairmen of the National Ski Patrol System regarding National Defense. They will arrive at Yosemite Valley in time for the National Downhill and Slalom Races. This will be the first time that Mr. Dole has had the opportunity of meeting the many men throughout the country who have aided in the success of the National Ski Patrol System.

HASSETT HOME AT LAST; DONS YANK UNIFORM

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 4—"It took me eight years to get this far but here I am," said Buddy Hassett as he donned a Yankee uniform early today at the Huggins Field clubhouse.

Hassett is the guy who will play first base for the Yanks this year. He started his professional career as a chattel of the New York club after he left Manhattan College but not until today had he ever appeared in Yankee livery.

The road back home has been long and tortuous for Buddy; Newark, Columbus, Brooklyn and Braves Field in Boston were the stops.

WORKED AS PLUMBER

Buddy is 29 years old now. He is practically sure of a job for he plays first base and the outfield and is a fair hitter. Ed Levy, who will also get a first base trial here, has a longer ball than Hassett but lacks experience against major league pitching.

"Since early in December," said Hassett today, "I have been working as a plumber on a defense project at Rome, New York. I need to take off some weight as it has been too cold up around Rome to do any road work."

"I got up many a morning when the thermometer registered ten below zero and the kids were skating on the roads. So I couldn't take much exercise outside of my shop work. The boys up there gave me a nice send-off when I left a few days ago."

Hassett arrived from New York with Marius Russo and an hour later both were in uniform at Huggins Field.

BONHAM IN TRIM

Gerald Priddy, who handed Mr. McCarthy his signed contract, was in uniform for the first time as his Kansas City sidekick, Phil Rizzuto, who has been trying to pick up some weight.

Ernest Bonham, checking in late, proved that he had done some preliminary training in California by taking his turn in a fast routine of pitcher's handling bunts and covering first base. Bonham then pitched to the batters.

As the first game with the Cardinals is scheduled for Friday McCarthy urged those regulars who are in town to jump the starting gun. That brought out Rizzuto, were not really due to open up Selkirk, Priddy and others who just yet.

Oldtimers Duel On Hoop Court

The Boston amateur basketball commission and the Eastern board of basketball officials are sponsoring a Naismith memorial golden ball celebration at the Charlestown Boys' Club gym. High at Charlestown, tomorrow night, starting at 8 with a game between two teams of oldtimers who are now acting as coaches and officials for the hoop game in and around Greater Boston. The team is made up of such well known stars of earlier years as "Dink" Carlson, "Tacks" Cornell, "Duke" Finn, "Fiddle" Morley and a score of others.

In addition to this feature there will be a reproduction of the first basketball game as played in 1891 when the game was founded by Dr. James Naismith.
